

Police Continue Evictions From Detroit Plants

Ignore U. A. W. Threat Of City-Wide Automotive Strike

PERMIT IS REFUSED

Demonstration Won't be Called Off, Spokesman Says

Detroit—Police continued to evict sit-down strikers from small captive plants today, in disregard of a United Automobile Workers threat to call a city-wide automotive strike, in retaliation.

Homer Martin, who declared Saturday that a general automotive strike would be called in "every organized plant" in Detroit if the police did not cease "raiding, slugging and blackjacking strikers and innocent bystanders," withheld comment on the ouster of 25 strikers from the Thomas P. Henry Printing Co. plant.

An hour and a half later, the city council refused a permit for a huge demonstration called by the U. A. W. for 5 o'clock Tuesday evening at Cadillac square, in the heart of the city, to "show labor's strength."

Merlin D. Bishop, educational director of the U. A. W., said the demonstration would be held without the permit.

Announcing the mass meeting Saturday night, Martin said that 175,000 union members would assemble to protest the police raids.

Plea to Governor

Martin was participating today in the union's conference with Chrysler Corp. officials on a strike which has closed eight Chrysler plants here. He made public a letter to Governor Frank Murphy, asserting that the Chrysler conference are "stalling," and asking the governor "to give the workers a square deal and avoid needless human suffering and bloodshed by demanding that the corporation abide by the law."

The removal of the strikers from the printing plant, which they had occupied since March 11, was accomplished without violence.

A striker who admitted 50 police, led by Commissioner Heinrich A. Pickett, said: "We have been waiting to surrender; I guess some of the boys are pretty anxious to go home."

Another threat of recall was telegraphed today to Governor Murphy, who shrugged off a similar threat during his successful efforts to end the recent General Motors strike.

Demands Evacuation

G. L. Williston, a manufacturer's agent, made public the telegram he said had been sent to the governor asking that he demand of U. A. W. officials that they evacuate all plants held.

"Upon their failure to do so," the telegram said, "I ask that you mobilize military units and effect immediate evacuation. Your failure to act at once on this suggestion will result in your removal by legal means . . . and your replacement as governor by one who will enforce legal law."

Williston said a group of 17 business men had agreed to underwrite the cost of a recall movement which, he said, would start on April 1 if the governor refuses to act.

Fifty policemen entered the printing plant at 8:35 a. m. (C. S. T.) apparently taking the approximately 30 strikers by surprise. The strikers were questioned at the plant.

Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson issued an order last week on the strikers to show cause why an injunction should not issue, forbidding them to occupy the plant.

An attorney for the company notified Judge Ferguson Saturday that Sheriff Thomas C. Wilcox had been unable to serve notice of the court order because of the press of other duties, and that the police had declined to eject the strikers.

Seek Union Recognition

Judge Ferguson continued a scheduled hearing until today and declared that the police department had the power to eject the strikers "if they want to do it."

The Henry plant has been non-union. Recognition of the International Typographical union is the major issue in the strike.

Wise Old Owl — It's the Bunk!

"The owl is a fool," declared Colonel H. P. Snelson of the biological survey in Washington. "The owl is simply like a lot of people; he doesn't say anything because he doesn't know much to say." He also explained that the bird is "too dumb to see in broad daylight." Shucks, there's another of our fond illusions debunked. But here's a little Post-Crescent Want Ad which wisely didn't say too much; nevertheless it achieved brilliant results, no fooling or bunk:

Rebel Army in Full Retreat, Madrid Hears

Loyalists Claim Town After Town Taken in Rapid Advance

MARCH ON SIGUENZA

Bombers Drop Explosives On Insurgent Concentrations

Madrid—Police—The government's northeastern army reported today it had pressed the insurgent retreat into a rout, capturing town after town in a rapid advance on the insurgent stronghold of Sigüenza.

The main column of General José Maja, commander of Madrid's armies, was reported to be approaching Almadrones, only 12 miles south of the insurgent base of operations at Sigüenza, after a 28 mile advance from Guadalajara.

At no point, dispatches from the vanguard commanders outside of Almadrones reported, had the pursuing column been able to contact the fleeing insurgents, routed in their fifth attempt to smash Madrid's defenses.

Launching the drive on Sigüenza itself, government bombers dropped 26,000 pounds of explosives on insurgent concentrations and supply dumps.

Munitions Trains Destroyed

Munitions trains were said to have been destroyed and one bomb found its target on the railroad station, causing a great explosion which was believed to have demolished a gasoline depot.

A column to the east of the main body reported the capture of Cogollos, eight miles southeast of Almadrones on the road from Gijón, and Yela, a small village to the south of Cogollos.

The western column, assigned to the task of protecting the left flank of General Maja's pursuit, reported it had reached the army at Padilla de Hita, 20 miles north of Guadalajara on a transverse road off the main highway.

The engagement, reported from the front said, was going against the insurgents despite a desperate stand.

Assembly Against Tax on 'Luxuries'

Votes to Strike Out Levy On Chewing Gum and Patent Medicines

Madison—The assembly went on record overwhelmingly today against a tax on so-called luxuries, including chewing gum and patent medicines.

It copied on a voice vote an amendment by Assemblyman Halverson (P), which would strike out a $1,000,000 levy on luxuries from a $10,000,000 revenue measure sponsored by the Wisconsin League of Municipalities.

Halverson's amendment would increase the yield from gift, inheritance and privileged dividend taxes.

The welfare committee had recommended defeat of the entire bill, but the house referred it and the amendment to the finance committee where it will be considered with other proposals intended to lighten relief burdens of municipalities.

The assembly met at 10:15 a. m., but lacked a quorum and recessed until noon. It proceeded to dispose rapidly of a calendar of secondary bills.

Dance Hall Manager Is Shot Down in New York

New York—Alfred Rossi, 35, manager of a "dime a dance" hall in the theatrical district, was shot and killed early today by one of four men he had ordered out of the place.

The gunman ran down the stairs of the second floor establishment and disappeared in the passing crowd.

Police were told that the slaying followed an argument between several of the men and some of the dance hall's hostesses. Rossi stopped the talk and ordered the men to leave.

"We'll be back," one of them was reported to have said.

A half-hour later, a man, described as being about 25 years old, dark and well dressed, returned, advanced on Rossi, who was sitting at a table conversing with friends, and fired.

Suspect Arrested in Minneapolis Slaying

Minneapolis—Police today held one suspect and continued their check of more than 1,000 automobile license numbers in an effort to find a clue to the slaying of Miss Laura Kruse, 18-year-old beauty parlor student whose body was found on the south side early Saturday.

"The suspect, whose name was not revealed, was taken into custody last night on information received from a girl police said. He was questioned for an hour and then placed in jail without charge."

Miss Kruse's body, bruised by her attacker-slayer, was found behind a vacant house. Information supplied by Magnus Hanson, motorman of a street car on which Miss Kruse rode home from a party, sent the police on the trail of the automobile numbers.

Plans Campaign to Collect Sums Due Under Security Act

Milwaukee—Otto A. La Budde, collector of internal revenue, warned today he soon would launch a collection campaign against 24,000 Wisconsin employers who failed to pay social security taxes. The deadline was March 1.

LaBudde said a penalty of 5 per cent would be assessed for each 30 days of delinquency until the penalty totaled 25 per cent.

He believes the delinquency due to a misunderstanding that no tax had to be paid if less than eight men were employed.

"This is true as far as the unemployment tax provided in the law is concerned, but all employers must pay the retirement tax."

Tells How School Was Connected to Gas Line in Texas

Superintendent Admits He Was 'Partly Responsible' For Arrangement

New London, Texas—Frank and weary with grief, W. C. Shaw, superintendent, told a military inquiry today he was "partly responsible" for an informal gas line connection for the heating system of the explosion-wrecked London school and that he had not known of any particular objection to the connection.

The gas line is being studied among numerous other factors in the search for the cause of the disaster which killed 455 children and teachers.

Shaw, who lost a son in the explosion, was so weakened that he retired from the witness stand to a nearby cot. He is a sufferer from high blood pressure.

As to the ignition of the explosion was provided by John Dial, 15, a student.

"A flash of fire blinded me," Dial testified, at almost the same instant a man pulled a light switch in the manual training room.

Consent Not Given

The gas connection of which Shaw testified was with a line of the Texas Gasline company, D. L. Clark, field foreman for that company, testified the school had "tapped" the line for heating fuel without his knowledge or consent.

Shaw said he had talked with Earl Clover, Parade's superintendent, observing the school was purchasing gas while oil field gas was going to waste.

"Mr. Clover did not give us specific permission," Shaw said, "and warned that we were liable to be cut loose at any time but I concluded that he did not particularly object."

Janitors ran pipe from the school to the company's line, Shaw said, and he was "partly responsible" for giving the order.

A preliminary opinion of Dr. E. P. Schoch, University of Texas explosives expert, was that accumulated gas within the walls or under the floors, caused the blast. The general contractor for the school told the court heating plans were changed from a steam boiler system to individual gas steam radiators for reasons of economy.

Backs Chain Tax Measure To Boost Teachers' Pay

Harrisburg, Pa.—Governor George H. Earle put the weight of his administration back of a chain store tax bill today to raise the salaries of teachers from $800 to $1,000 a year in school districts of less than 5,000 population.

The governor said last night he had always favored a chain store tax but had omitted it from the state budget because he tried to avoid new taxes.

Source close to the executive estimated the tax would provide $3,000,000 during the next two years to increase the teacher salaries.

Lifeboats Rescue 72 From Burning Vessel

London—Lifeboats from the shore today rescued the crew of 72 from the blazing steamer Marie Moller off Holyhead on the northeastern coast of Wales. The ship was abandoned when flames enveloped her after two explosions. She was bound to Liverpool from Shanghai with a cargo of peanuts.

Ten Killed, Scores Injured During Nationalists' Riot in Puerto Rico

Ponce, Puerto Rico—Police, armed with machine guns and tear gas pistols, patrolled Ponce streets today as the death list in yesterday's nationalist rioting mounted to 10.

Several of the half-hundred persons injured in the clashes between police and nationalists, who seek independence from the United States, were reported in serious condition. The general situation was quiet today.

They reported the disturbances began when nationalist paraders sought to disregard a regulation which prohibited mass demonstrations.

The nationalists, apparently determined to parade as scheduled were said to have been assembling at Marina and Jobs streets when a police officer appeared. A nationalist was alleged to have fired from the midst of the crowd, wounding a policeman, and general fighting started as the police returned the fire.

Pontiff Warns Reich's Chief In Encyclical

Says Anyone Trying to Replace God Is 'Prophet Of Absurdity'

SEES PACT BROKEN

German Police Try to Guard Contents of Papal Letter

Vatican City—Pope Pius, in a reference interpreted at the Vatican as directed "unmistakably" at Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, warned the third reich today that anyone who attempts to replace God as the supreme religious being should be regarded as "a senseless prophet of absurdity."

In the second encyclical message in a week, which was read yesterday in all German Catholic churches, the holy father said bluntly:

"The point has now been reached where there is a question of the final and highest end, of salvation or of perdition."

He charged the 1933 concordat between the Vatican and the Berlin government—in which the separate rights of church and state were set forth—has been destroyed and "rendered intrinsically valueless."

He placed direct blame for destruction of the agreement on the government, asserting "we have done everything to defend the sanctity of the solemnly pledged word."

Hopes for "Peace"

At the same time, he expressed hope the conflicting interests of nazism and the church may be restored to "truce peace."

His declaration denounced the "open fight against confessional schools and the suppression of liberty of choice for those who have a right to Catholic education."

Although expressing his "paternal sorrow" over the church and state conflict in Germany, the pontiff militantly charged that Catholics were being persecuted "with pressure veiled and open and with intimidations which promise professional, economic, civic and other advantages."

Calling for a return to basic theology, the pope declared anyone daring to place a simple mortal beside or above Christ is "a senseless prophet of absurdities."

The issuance of the encyclical epistle became known here for the first time today when the Vatican secretariat of state issued a 1,300 word summary of the document.

Million Persons Face Starvation in Famine

Sianfu, Shensi Province, China—Rain within two weeks was believed today to be the only hope of saving more than 1,000,000 persons from starving to death in China's "dust bowl."

The vast drought and famine areas of central and west China was reported today to have stretched across Szechwan and Hunan provinces, and grasped all of Shensi.

The provincial famine relief bureau said 4,000,000 persons were on the verge of starvation in the 40,000 square mile area. Of this number, it was estimated 1,000,000 would be doomed to death unless rain falls.

In southern Shensi, hardest hit portion of the "dust bowl," all cattle have been killed and eaten, and homes have been stripped even of their timber to be sold with farm implements for the scarce vegetables to make watery soup.

Refuses Postponement In Federation Action

Milwaukee—Civil Judge A. J. Hedding denied today a defense motion for a 24-hour adjournment in the suit of the American Federation of Labor to replevin $5,000 worth of funds and property from the Allis Chalmers company federal labor union.

The suit was filed a week ago when the union dropped its A. F. of L. charter to join the John L. Lewis committee for industrial organization.

Joseph A. Padway, attorney for the plaintiffs, said the A. F. of L. would file similar suits against unions throughout the country which seceded to Lewis ranks.

The expensively furnished young home on "Picnic point," which juts into Lake Mendota, was destroyed by fire Sept. 4, 1935.

Hughes Says Increase In Size of Court Not Needed for Efficiency

Highlights of Letter Chief Justice Refuses to Discuss 'Question Of Policy'

ANSWERS WHEELER

Montana Senator Presents Letter to Senate Committee

Washington—Chief Justice Hughes, in a letter presented to the senate judiciary committee today by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) said that an increase in the number of supreme court justices "would not promote the efficiency of the court."

The chief justice made it clear that he was commenting on an increase from the standpoint of efficiency and "apart from any question of policy," which he said "I do not discuss."

Wheeler, opening testimony in opposition to the Roosevelt court bill, began by reading the Hughes letter which the chief justice said was approved by Justices Van Devanter and Brandeis.

The letter created a stir among the big crowd which had assembled in the caucus room long before the hearing started to listen to the Montana Democrat open the opposition to the court bill.

Hughes was emphatic in his statement that the proposed increase in the number of justices "would not promote the efficiency of the court."

Threat to Efficiency

"It is believed," he added, "that it would impair that efficiency so long as the court acts as a unit."

"There would be more judges to hear, more judges to confer, more judges to discuss, more judges to be convinced and decide. The present number of justices is thought to be large enough so far as the prompt, adequate and efficiency conduct of the work of the court is concerned."

"As I have said, I do not speak of any other considerations in view of the appropriate attitude of the court in relation to questions of policy."

"I understand that it has been suggested that with more justices the court could hear cases in divisions. It is believed that such a plan would be impracticable. A large proportion of the cases we hear are important and a decision by a part of the court would be unsatisfactory."

Reply to Wheeler

Hughes' letter was written to Wheeler in response to inquiries from the Montana senator "with respect to the work of the supreme court."

The chief justice said that "on account of the shortness of time I have not been able to consult with the members of the court generally, but I am confident that it is in accord with the views of the justices."

"I should say, however," he added, "that I have been able to consult with Mr. Justice Van Devanter and Mr. Justice Brandeis, and I am at liberty to say that the statement is approved by them."

Hughes began his letter with a statement that "the supreme court is fully abreast of its work."

"When we rose on March 15 (for the present recess)," Hughes said, "we had heard argument in cases in which certiorari had been granted only four weeks before—Feb. 15."

No Contention

"During the current term, which began last October and which we call October term, 1935, we have heard argument on the merits of 150 cases (129 numbers) and we have 23 cases (39 numbers) awaiting argument."

"We shall be able to hear all these cases, and such others as may come up for argument, before our adjournment for the term. There is no question of cases upon our calendar."

Roosevelt Plans Philippines Trip In Naval Vessel

Warm Springs, Ga.—President Roosevelt was reported authoritatively today to be planning a trip to the Philippines in a naval vessel, sometime in the next year and a half.

Such a trip would give him an opportunity to see, first hand, progress made by the new commonwealth in assuring economic and political balance to prepare itself for complete freedom from the United States.

The journey would boost his travels by sea and land while president to approximately 125,000 miles, should he go overland to San Francisco and embark there, or to about 131,000 if he sailed from an Atlantic port via the Panama canal.

The round-trip by the land-water route is roughly 20,000 miles—the canal passage 25,000.

A joint Philippine-American committee soon will be appointed to study the economic feasibility of advancing full independence for the islands from 1940 to 1950 or 1955.

Appleton factory employment increased 7 per cent from Dec. 15 to Jan. 15 to reach a new peak of 101.6 per cent of the 1925-27 average, the February labor market report of the state industrial commission shows. During the same period, however, aggregate weekly pay rolls declined 4.5 per cent.

The employment increased was from 81.45 to 81.86 and the pay roll decreased from $70,002 to $67,149. The figures were based on reports from 34 firms.

Appleton's January employment figure of 101.6 per cent of the 1925-27 average was a substantial gain over January 1935 when the percentage was 82.5 and over the corresponding month of 1935 when it was 89 per cent.

Aggregate weekly pay rolls in January were 101.7 per cent of the 1925-27 mean and marked a much greater gain over the corresponding months of 1935 and 1936. In January 1936 pay rolls were 82.5 per cent of the 1925-27 average, in 1935 they were 85.8. In December of 1935, however, the figure was 100.7 per cent.

Neenah-Menasha employment declined 5 per cent from Dec. 15 to Jan. 15 but pay rolls increased 11 per cent. Employment was 106.8 per cent of the 1925-27 average however and pay rolls 123.2 per cent.

Pay Rolls Decline

In the state as a whole, factory employment increased 14 per cent while corresponding pay rolls declined 5 per cent during the 30 day period included in the report. For the corresponding monthly period of the years 1925-27, factory employment declined 3 per cent and pay rolls 4.1 per cent.

Employees averaged 41.8 hours of work per week in January 1937. This compares with an average of 39.5 hours in January 1936, 33.2 hours in January 1935 and 32.5 hours in January 1934. Average weekly earnings of factory employees was $24.53 in January 1937, $22.20 in January 1936 and $13.53 in January 1935. As a whole, factory employment and pay roll totals were higher in January 1937 than in January 1935.

Factory employment normally shows a small seasonal decline from month to month from July through January. A new record was established recently with month to month increases in employment from August 1936 to January 1937.

Committee May Inspect Rivers

Plan Series of Visits to Regions Hit by Floods

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington — Wisconsin rivers which have been devastated by floods, where congress has authorized or is considering authorizing flood control projects may be visited before long by members of the House Flood Control Committee.

Under the direction of Representative Whittingham of Mississippi, chairman, committee members are planning a series of visits to flood areas.

Whittington appointed a committee including Representative Zimmerman of Missouri, McClellan of Kansas, Quinn of Pennsylvania, Sargent of Ohio, Carlson of Kansas, and himself to make arrangements for the trips. Representative Bernard J. Gehrman of Illinois as a member of the flood control committee probably will go on some of the trips.

Members pointed out that they are not sufficiently acquainted with many of the sections where they are asked to authorize flood control projects. Several members claim to have never seen levees while others have not yet seen flood control dams and reservoirs. All were anxious to visit such areas as those in Mississippi, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New England where floods have wrought millions of dollars' worth of damage.

Amelia and 2 Navigators Sail for U. S. From Honolulu

Honolulu — A commerce department investigation into the crash of Amelia Earhart's $80,000 "flying laboratory" was under way today as the aviatrix and her colleagues sailed toward Los Angeles to plan another globe-circling attempt.

Inspector Emil Williams said he was studying the take-off crash which halted Miss Earhart's projected trip and for a brief moment endangered the lives of the famed aviatrix and her navigators. Findings will be sent to Washington, where any announcements will be made.

Miss Earhart had completed a speed-making 2,400-mile jump from Oakland, Calif. to Hawaii, and was taking off at dawn Saturday when the undercarriage of her plane gave way as the ship sped down the runway at 50 miles an hour. Army officers and civilians praised her for her coolness in cutting the ignition switches and avoiding the possible fire.

Most aviation experts believed the right tire burst. Damage to the plane was estimated at several thousand dollars.

Special National Committee Studies Vocational Needs

Desire Information Concerning Program Under New Statutes

A special committee, consisting of nationally known educators and business men, has been appointed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to make recommendations concerning federal aid for vocational education particularly with respect to programs now existing or contemplated under the Smith-Hughes, George-Dean and related statutes.

A questionnaire requesting data concerning trade associations and its work has been received by chamber of commerce leaders and is now being answered by Herb Heilig, Appleton Vocational school director.

The questions dealing with time and money available for the work do not apply to the Appleton Vocational school, Mr. Heilig said, as federal money received by the local school is used "to promote and foster training for workers which is supplementary to their daily employment both on apprenticeship or journeyman levels."

Few states have established vocational units and few have given serious attention to the apprenticeship system which is in effect in Wisconsin, Mr. Heilig reported. In other states, vocational courses offered in high school take the place of vocational education.

The Appleton school is primarily an adult school, Mr. Heilig points out with about 10 adults enrolled for each youth under 18 years of age. The system is not a day unit trade school in which there is a two, three or four year curriculum which tries to train students, for journeyman's jobs, he said.

"The object of the adult school is to be a service station where adults can receive educational help to adjust themselves for changing conditions or jobs, in homes and in the community," Mr. Heilig stated.

Questions Concern Laborers
Some of the questions about which the national committee is attempting to obtain information from trade associations are: "Are you now experiencing any difficulty in securing an adequate supply of skilled and semi-skilled workers in your industry? Is apprentice training customary and desirable in your industry and how is it organized?"

"Please describe any training program for employees that you sponsor or carry on and your experience with it? To what extent are boys and girls employed in your industry who have taken vocational courses financed in part through federal aid under the Smith-Hughes plan? Should the full-time day schools limit their vocational education to a generalized type of course, applicable to a family of occupations, leaving the specific skills to be acquired on the job?"

Candidates Must File Campaign Cost Report

FOLKS GROW OLD FASTER AFTER 40 WHEN BODIES ARE SLOWLY POISONED

How Sluggish Liver, Poor Stomach and Intestines Cause Old Age

Because of neglect many folks allow themselves to grow old before their time. When the liver, stomach, kidneys and intestines are not functioning properly old age comes faster. Bodies are gradually poisoned, a person feels run-down, tired, nervous and can't sleep. They lose their appetite and can't digest the food they eat. They become easy victims of colds and other common ailments. Their friends begin to pity them and feel sorry for them in their "premature old age."

DON'T GIVE UP
If you are one of these—what are you going to do about it? Are you going to allow yourself to become one of those sickly, groggy old trunks pitted by everyone and losing your interest in life? You don't want to be in that class, so why not do something about it—RIGHT NOW, today. Try Tonic Stuebner, a blend of special ingredients that has been used by Wisconsin doctors for over 30 years with remarkable results. Tonic Stuebner, or TS as it is known at your drugstore, seems to be the very thing for toning up the entire system and helping the vital organs of your body to work properly.

FREE TEST
For a limited time only it won't cost you a cent to try T. S. It is stocked by all better drug stores in Wisconsin. Just take this ad to Schmitz Bros. Drug and get a free trial bottle of T. S. See how much better you will feel in just a few days. If your drugstore is out of samples, just send a postcard to T. S. LABORATORIES, Inc., Dept. A-3, Shawano, Wis. No cost, no obligation. —Adv.

"Right More Precious Than Peace" Led U. S. into War Twenty Years Ago

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles dealing with the entry of the United States into the World War, 20 years ago.)
Tomorrow: War Hysteria.

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Washington — (AP) — The United States plunged into the World War 20 years ago on a somber Good Friday—anniversary of the crucifixion of the Nazarene who exhorted all men to peace and good will.

At 11 minutes past 1 o'clock, the afternoon of April 6, 1917, President Wilson signed the war resolution with a pen handed to him by Mrs. Wilson, and announced: "I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America do hereby proclaim to all whom it may concern that a state of war exists between the United States and the imperial German government."

That most momentous proclamation since the Civil war was wagwagged from a window of the White House to the navy department. Telegraphers there relayed it to the great naval wireless tower at Arlington whence it was flown to naval stations and vessels throughout the world.

Wilson Before Congress
Uncle Sam had definitely embarked on "the great adventure of saving the world for democracy," maintaining the while his own honor. Today a war-wiser Uncle Sam, his dreams of a Wilsonian concept of free peoples badly battered, anxiously watches war shadows over Europe and moves to set up "iron-clad safeguards" of American peace.

Before congress, assembled in special session on April 2, President Wilson appeared to ask for declaration of the existence of war because of Germany's submarine warfare "without restraints of law or humanity." German intrigue against the United States and the menace of autocracy to the liberty-loving people of the world.

LaFollette Fights Action
The president had entered the house chamber amid deafening cheers but Senator Robert (Fighting Bob) LaFollette, who strongly opposed going to war, stood with arms crossed and head sunk over his chest.

When Wilson said the congress should vote for war, the six supreme court justices who were in the chamber solemnly arose as if to approve the president's proposal.

Two nights later the senate by a vote of 82 to 6 adopted the war resolution. A few minutes after 3 o'clock on the morning of April 6 the house approved it, 373 to 50. Dramatic scenes and historic decisions attended the procedure in both houses.

LaFollette launched into an impassioned three-hour speech by reading a letter from a North Dakota mother protesting in behalf of her son against the slaughter of war.

"The poor who are called to rot in the trenches," he shouted, "have no organized mouthpiece; they have no press but the day after tomorrow, I hope, when they will be heard."

And later in his speech, he thundered: "The man who says I am unpatriotic lies in his throat."

Norris Blames 'Gold'
The eloquent John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, arose to reply.

"The speech of the Wisconsin senator would better have become the German chancellor, Von Bethmann-Hollweg, than an American senator," he charged. "I have loved the Wisconsin senator in a way until recently. But I have no patience with any man who stands up in the senate at this time applauding the common enemy."

If American people cannot be aroused now in patriotic fervor they are degenerate sons of noble sires."

Said Senator George Norris of Nebraska: "I am most emphatically opposed to taking any step that will force this country into useless and senseless war but I shall not permit my feelings to interfere with bringing victory to American arms."

"We are going into war upon command of gold," Norris added. "We are about to do the bidding of wealth's terrible mandate, make millions of countrymen suffer, untold generations bear burdens and shed their lifeblood all because we want to preserve our commercial right to deliver munitions to the belligerents."

Lone Woman Opposed
House passage of the war resolution followed 17 hours of continuous debate. Among those opposed to war were Democratic Leader Claude Kitchin of North Dakota and Miss Jeannette Rankin, elected to congress. Miss Rankin, then the only one of her sex in congress, sat through the first roll call with bowed head trembling, failing to answer to her name.

On the second roll call she arose and said in a faint voice: "I want to stand by my country but I cannot vote for war."

For a moment she remained standing, leaning against a desk. As cries of "Vote, Vote" came from several parts of the house, she sank back into her seat without voting.

As she had not actually cast her vote, the clerk walked to her seat and asked if she wished to say yes or no. "I vote no," she whispered.

The Eagle Soars
The American Eagle had been flapping its wings for two months. On Feb. 3 the United States had several diplomatic relations with Germany following the announced resumption of unrestricted operations by the Kaiser's U-boats. Continued sinking of merchant ships with Americans aboard and alleged attempts by the Berlin government to induce Mexico to war on the United States led to the belief that U. S. entrance into the hostilities was inevitable.

Congress was asked for $2,450,000,000 immediately for the war budget. Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, announced plans for the fleet's co-operation with Great Britain and France, while Herbert Hoover, of Belgian relief fame, was coming home to head the food administration and inaugurate meatless and wheatless days.

And soon the first raw recruits for what was to become eventually an army of 4,000,000 were parading to army camps.

The Administration's Neighborly Policy has ripened some more luscious peaches, this time for Bolivia.

Our State Department protests to Germany for aspersing American citizens or vilifying the country. But under the Neighborly Policy it is strangely paralyzed if another country, and particularly one of our sweet Latin-American neighbors, despoils American citizens of their property. Thus we protect and glorify the rights of persons to their good name but we wouldn't dirty our hands with such a vile thing as the property of an American citizen abroad if the country where he happens to have gone takes a liking to that property.

Bolivia has just confiscated the vast holdings of the Standard Oil Company in that country. The order of confiscation merely recites that the Standard Oil Company breached its contract by shipping out oil without paying the 11 per cent royalty agreed upon. A year ago last fall the Bolivian government specifically accused Standard Oil of shipping out oil by means of a secret pipe line across the Argentine frontier, as though anyone could expect to hide a pipe line for long, and particularly one many miles in length.

Fortunately for Standard Oil the accusation brought action from the Argentine government. It created a commission for investigation. The commission reported the charge wholly without foundation, that there was no secret pipe line and that no oil had been smuggled into Argentine territory.

Of course there was nothing surprising to the Bolivian government about the report of the Argentine commission because it knew the charge was false all the time. Bandits are seldom affected, however, by contrary reports concerning their purposes. The Standard Oil says that the Bolivian government, fashioned somewhat upon European fascist lines would not print the report of the Argentine Commission or the detailed denial of Standard Oil but persisted in printing and reprinting its charge of criminal conduct against the company so as to anger its people and pave the way for the resulting confiscation.

There was a time when Americans were not exactly held up on the public plaza and stripped to their shirts. That was before the Neighborly Policy. The bandit nations to the south of us—and nearly half of them are nothing short of bandits—look upon the Neighborly Policy as a godsend. It is as good as a smoke screen.

It may be remembered that Cuba under the benign influence of the Neighborly Policy repudiated 49 millions of bonds held by Americans who had paid over their good dollars for the Cuban paper. The Cubans wanted the money for the army or something of that kind so it was easy to accuse the bondholders of fraud. When the bondholders went to Cuban courts for relief they were adjudged to be in the right. Even the Cuban judges could not avoid that conclusion. There simply was no evidence of fraud. And the evidence was undeniable that the Americans had paid their money in for the bonds, that the Cuban government had not only received it but spent it.

Here we may note a little difference in technique at Havana and Washington. The government at Havana didn't pack the Cuban supreme court to avoid the decision, but just didn't pay any attention to it anyway. The Americans are still looking for their money.

To date Cuba, Mexico, Chile and Bolivia have systematically defrauded Americans of their property under the protection of the Neighborly Policy. They say it is a great policy and that President Roosevelt is a wonderful man.

There are still some of the countries to the south of us who have not taken advantage of the generous terms of the Neighborly Policy. But we must not despair. Some of them have not yet learned to read, but in good time will come to their senses.

WHEN THE GOVERNMENT GETS INTO A BAD DEAL

Wisconsin's Congressman Hull is becoming concerned over that expensive white elephant called the Matanuska Colony up in Alaska.

He finds that the new settlers now owe the government an average of over $4,000 each, which, of course, does not include the general expense to the government for founding the colony.

With but 175 families to look after and something like $700,000 already loaned to them the Administration wants another $800,000 for general purposes including subsidizing another 30 families.

But neither the original expense nor the amount loaned each family concerns Mr. Hull at this time. From his public statement we gather that he is really affected more by a system of bookkeeping than anything else.

In all government ventures that are ushered in with heavy orchestration bookkeeping is a matter of dominant importance. This is true because bookkeeping may be so directed as to hide more than it reveals. And in government supported ventures it is quite essential to do a lot of concealing.

At Matanuska it appears the government is concerned about how it shall hide from the books the fact that it has sunk and will continue to sink so much of public moneys.

It is not an altogether different problem from that confronting the government on the Tennessee river. The government really has considerable experience in this respect. The families in Matanuska need hardly be concerned about a mere million dollars more or less when they consider that they are dealing with a government that hides hundreds of millions.

Hereafter, if proponents of the plan have their way, instead of making loans to the Matanuska colonists they will be given money outright, so much for building a barn, so much for building a chicken coop, so much for the big catch of fish, and so on.

The beauty about subsidies of that character is that you must accept a fair blow during the period in which the money is bid goodbye, but there is no eternal bookkeeping entry to show the country year after year how foolishly it may have conducted its public affairs.

In relation to the yardsticks we are building to measure the great problem of electricity generation there is so much whittling going on regarding the money spent that we may end up with only an inchstick, if that.

STRIKES AND THE "UNITED FRONT"

There is a disposition in too many quarters to place a blanket condemnation upon the outburst of strikes spotting the country.

It is true they are annoying. It is true they tend in some measure to withhold the steady tramp of industry with its heartening effects everywhere.

But it is not true that they may be blindly condemned.

Every strike represents a controversy. Perhaps everyone presents different features from every other one.

To attempt to decide them all according to some particular notion would be as mistaken as trying to fit some particular standard upon the hundred or more controversies in the nature of lawsuits started in our local courts every week.

To issue a blanket condemnation of the conduct of men who may be merely seeking justice as they see it is entirely un-American. It is impossible to pass upon controversies without knowing the facts, the claims, and something of the history of the relations at a particular plant.

Striking without warning, however, is ordinarily as improper as any other radical action, the necessity for which may be avoided by a bit of patience.

Nor can the people or labor itself, which is ordinarily fair, shut their eyes to the Reds or criminals who work their way into almost every strike situation. We quote from a dependable Detroit Journalist:

"In one downtown department store a young lady garbed in the uniform of a store-restaurant waitress was found circulating among the employees urging them to strike. Upon being detected, she was found to be one of the city's leading lady communists. The store employees, not the police gave her the bum's rush out the front door. The leader in the Frank and Seder store strike on Thursday was Louis Miller who was sentenced Oct. 16, 1930, to Jackson prison for kidnapping. One of the organizers in the Newton Packing Company strike—one of the worst cases in Detroit—where $75,000 of meat was stolen to the tune of Sam Cooper, who has been in prison nearly seven times in the last three years. Another leader in the Newton strike was Harry Millman who has a record of 22 arrests which include kidnapping and murder charges. A third Newton leader was Louis Fleisher with a similar record of arrests and who was sentenced in 1926 to 10 years in Leavenworth for violating the interstate shipment act.

"On Thursday it was revealed that one of the chief organizers of the U. A. W. A. Herman Richards, alias Herman Kierdorff, was sentenced to 16 months in Leavenworth on a charge of impersonating a federal officer. In 1929 he was arrested on a charge of receiving stolen goods of $100,000. He was also arraigned in the La Bar kidnapping case. The union has cleared it will discharge him if the charges are true."

Labor cannot take every eager, voluble man at his own appraisal. It must find out even by fingerprints if necessary, the record and the dependability of those who jump for the saddle.

To date the people of America have handled the strike situation pretty sensibly. It is possible to say this because tempers have not been permitted to rile at too high a rate. After all, adjustment may just as easily occur, and perhaps easier, without either violence or unfairness in methods employed.

Jonah:

You have one chance out of 158,753,000,000 to get 13 cards of one suit, which is also about your chance of getting a spring one.

Still, considering the amount of bridge some women play it must happen quite frequently to a lot of women around Appleton we know.

Hearing such gents as Little Flower La Guardia, Iron Pants Johnson, and Chief Sitting Down Lewis rant at Hitler, reminds me very much of a William Hale Thompson who is generally regarded as one of the worst of Chicago's gangster politicians. Back when Bill needed something to shout about—and he couldn't shout about his political record—he went to town on King George.

This column has done its share of hooting at Hitler but it was not done to cover up any wife-beating, or habitual drunkenness, on my part, or to further my political ambitions which are confined solely to the desire to retain the right to vote.

And I don't blame the German newspapers for going to town on us as long as THOSE gents are doing the Hitler-baiting. Every one of this trio has the Roosevelt blessing and takes orders from Mister Big. If it's to their political advantage to make faces at Adolf, why should the president care?

Let Cordell Hull take the rap.

The baseball season seems to be getting under way in good shape. When this was written on Saturday morning, it seemed that the Cubs had lost three straight games to the second-string players. Wait'll they play the White Sox. Obey, obey, obey.

The first day of spring happened during the weekend. A typically Wisconsin first-day-of-spring. The weather forecast read "snow and colder."

The trouble now is that I can't go back home to Indiana and brag about the thirty-below-zero temperatures and the ten foot snowdrifts. We may still get the snowdrifts, but the chance for thirty-below-zero is pretty well eliminated by the calendar.

THE UNFINISHED SYMPHONY

Perhaps Schubert, whose liquid notes of love sing in his symphony, could find no end for such a theme. . . . To startle skies above from daisy-studded earth Love's flames ascend. Pale candles gleam on altars Love has made. A votive light burns in each mother's heart. A bonfire leaps in the desert of his heart. Upon the mountain top the high flames start.

How can Love's music end? This could not be. For life would finish and all hearts be broken. Without the meaning in this symphony. From the celestial choirs the word is spoken. And Love is our reward for every breath. We draw in life, and even beyond death.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THE PREVENTION OF APOPLEXY

The common name for apoplexy is a "stroke" or "shock" of paralysis. Physicians refer to the condition as cerebral hemorrhage and to the consequent paralysis as hemiplegia, which means one-sided stroke. For the paralysis is usually confined to one side of the body.

If the right side of the body is affected, usually there is more or less paralysis of speech too, for the brain center controlling fine movements such as writing by the right arm and hand is in the left side of the brain close to the center controlling the muscles of articulation, and the bleeding in such case is into the left cerebral hemisphere, generally from rupture of a small branch of the middle cerebral artery which supplies blood to that part of the brain.

Speech center of a right-handed individual is in the left side of the brain (near the base in the region of the ear). In a left-handed individual, however, the speech center is in the right side of the brain. Ambidextrous individuals, if trained to write and do other fine work with either hand or both, use both sides of the brain, are less likely to suffer aphasia (loss of speech) from a stroke, for if the hemorrhage into the brain tissue damages the speech center of one side, the already developed speech center of the other side carries on. Individuals who are trained only one-handedly must start from scratch and learn to write latent center when the active writing-speech apparatus has been put out of commission by apoplexy or other injury. This is another good reason why natural left-handedness should never be interfered with; or rather why ambidexterity should be encouraged.

Unfortunately there are no definite warning signals of impending apoplexy. Flushed face or an appearance of full-bloodedness is no more significant, perhaps less, than pallor or an anemic or thin-blooded look.

Unfortunately, too—for the victims of pretense, many eminent physicians, relying on their established position, still dare to perpetrate upon credulous patients such sick diagnoses as "brain fog," "nervous breakdown," "the verge of neurasthenia," "functional nervous exhaustion" or just "bad nerves." Such humbug diagnosis may not be entirely vain in cases on the callow side of forty, especially if it holds patient under observation till the doctor can get some idea what really ails 'em. But even that expedient cannot justify such quackery when the patient is over forty years of age. In every case when a patient past forty complains of such symptoms as fatigability, increasing restlessness, insomnia and apprehension, even though the vital organs are apparently healthy and the blood pressure is normal or subnormal, the state of the arteries, and not the nerves, calls for the physician's most careful consideration.

Doctor who treats himself has a fool for a patient. Layman who treats himself has one for a doctor. But of all fools the superlative is the layman who attempts to interpret and regulate his own blood pressure.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Gallon of Water
Will drinking four quarts of water with the juice of a lemon do any harm or any good? (Mrs. W. M.)
Answer—Depends on how long you take to drink it. A gallon of water is enough for two or three days. The lemon juice makes no difference so far as the effects of water drinking are concerned.

M. Told
At times I feel a slight pain in my right side. M. Told this is caused by an irritation of the appendix and that there is a diet to avoid this. Please give me the diet. (H. A.)

Answer—Why not ask old M. for it. He knows a lot more about it than I do. In my opinion it is silly to imagine occasional slight pain in the side spells "irritation of the appendix." If there is anything the matter with the appendix there is no particular diet that can remedy it, so far as I know.

Acne and Sweats
Have oily skin and much bothered with large blind hard pimples over chin and forehead and cheeks. Have tried avoiding all sweets, starchy foods and greasy foods. (F. A.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on Acne—Blackheads and Pimples—Oily Skin. Better not restrict your diet, there is no basis for the notion that sweets, starchy foods or oils or fats are in any way responsible for this common skin complaint of young persons. RUBBISH "COLLECTION"
Editor Post-Crescent—Undoubtedly, we are all desirous of seeing our city beautiful. Judging by what was seen during the rubbish collection in the Fifth ward last Tuesday, I question the matter as to just what good it does cooperating citizens to clean up their yards and basements and put the collection along side the curbing only to have the men on the trucks pick over the things in search for something further usage. What is more, it is very indecorous to see the men themselves, who are put in charge to see that the collection is taken care of properly, to be tampering with trash.

Whoever the driver is on city truck No. 3, apparently has a wide collection of antiquated and dilapidated relics stored at home. It was very amusing to see how carefully he searched through the containers and suddenly became all agog when he found a discarded paint brush and some old wire which he put in his pocket.

Also, street urchins should be stopped 'snooping' through the refuse. Another incident was that of two small urchins who were parading around the streets with a cart piled high with discarded automobile tires, two Christmas trees and old dolls which they had procured in their quest.

What are the parents thinking of to allow their children to bring home these obsolete things? How are we going to be able to keep our streets clean when the rubbish is picked from one place only to be hauled to some other back yard?

Let's put a stop to all this ransacking of rubbish piles—rubbish collectors and street 'kids' (I hope the parents will do their part in co-operation—teach the children to leave 'hands off' the rubbish.)

When dilapidations are meant to be thrown away, let's have the landing place where the street department has meant it to be, and not in the worker's pockets or in other back yards, and see if we can't dispense with the happy 'treasure hunt' on Tuesdays.

One who is truly interested in the beauty of Appleton.

Your Birthday

"ARIES"

If March 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 5:30 to 10:30 a. m., from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m.

The danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a. m., from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m.

There is danger that a lack of graciousness will involve you in trouble this day. Vibration may also work mischief in some way, probably through breakage. Be careful that hammering, stamping or shaking does not cause too much oscillation or swaying of some object that a crash results. Your hands are likely to play an important part in your day's work. A weak handshake might prejudice someone against you, or give the impression you are lacking in cordiality.

A lack of a firm hold is liable to be responsible for your dropping something of value, so guard against these possibilities. This day is auspicious for all kinds of social relaxation, particularly in the way of entertainment. Married and engaged couples, as well as those who have a romantic attachment that promises to be lasting, will be wise not to be too dramatic in any protest that they may make on this day.

If a woman and March 23 is your birthday, you are, in all likelihood, very thorough in whatever work you undertake. You should take a great interest in both church and social work. You are capable of directing others efficiently. You probably have many high ideals. The chances are you will become prominent socially in a circle of your own choosing. You may have had some financial setbacks, but your future pecuniary prospects seem to be very bright. Whatever changes you are going to have in fortune, will be for the better. It is very important for you to try to make all the friends you can, and to create as few enemies as possible. As a shop, department or restaurant manager, actress, artist, author or secretary your advancement possibly will cause you to assume a position of great responsibility. You ought to be very lucky in your selection of a husband.

The child born on March 23, perhaps will be quite precocious during the early years of childhood. Its parents must not encourage it to say pert things simply because they seem cute. What may seem clever in a very young child is apt to be regarded as rudeness in an older one.

If a man and March 23 is your natal day, depend upon your own efforts, if you expect to get anywhere. Loyalty is fine, providing it does not cause you to sacrifice your family or your own interests, and this is one thing you must always take into consideration, when com-

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Now it can be reported that opening sessions of the senate hearing on the Supreme Court bill were less than spectacular, and that is too bad, for Washington was entitled to a better deal. This city seems off the beaten theatrical track and gets few first line performances except such as the senate provides. True the house can put on shows but for the most part they are an inferior brand unless they involved funny business.

* Aria *

Attorney General Cummings as a first witness was better than expected. He had a tough aria to sing in the first act. It was Cummings who first advanced the doctrine that the courts were so head over heels in work that justice simply couldn't seep through and for that reason six more justices were needed on the Supreme Court and as many as 50 on the inferior courts.

So many seeming holes were shot through that argument before Mr. Cummings got to the witness stand that even water flies were slaking their thirst when he went to the radio with his first fireside chat on the court.

Yet Mr. Cummings had to sing the music as he had written it. He presented a statistical study of the number of briefs and opinions the members of the court had to read before they could render a decision and by that means sought to show that the job was simply too much for nine men, and particularly these nine men among whom are six past 70 years.

"It's like reading 'Gone With the Wind' before breakfast every morning," Cummings joked.

Yet when several members of the committee sought to pin him down as to whether he thought the nine present justices were slaking their work he declined to answer on the ground he was a member of the bar and did not like to be put in a position of criticizing the court's opinions.

* Show *

Under pressure of examination Mr. Cummings made one statement that left many New Dealers chattering in the corners. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and even President Roosevelt have pleaded that a major reason for changing the court was to permit legislation to conserve national resources for the future. Yet, said Cummings:

"I am not disturbed so much about the present situation. Future generations should be left to take care of their own affairs; we should take care of the present."

Ceremonial Officer Sees Behind Scenes of State

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington, D. C.—The death of Charles L. Cooke, the ceremonial officer of the state department, brings to notice the unbelievable pettiness and feminine vanity and jealousy of the men who personify the great and little nations of the earth in foreign lands. Not that Mr. Cooke, himself, shared these vices. It appears that he was a pretty good fellow and merely recognized their existence in the diplomats and statesmen and the great soldiers and sailors of all nations, not excepting our own. He served his country well by preventing tea-cup tempers which, in an extreme view, might have led on to the slaughter. It was Mr. Cooke's job in the state department to keep peace among the he-tabbies of world diplomacy, the vain and sensitive military heroes in horse feathers and gold lace who are sent around the world as attaches, and the elegant sod-busters and lawyers of American official life as well. He was the one who saw to it that they were presented precisely according to their precedence and seated thus at official dinners. He kept the pouring and sulking representatives of great nations at opposite ends of the room when the great war was on and, having worked out a plan in his head through long experience in the state department, he finally reduced it to a written formula for the guidance of his successors.

Pegler

It may seem absurd that a nation with this country's rather ostentatious democracy in purely social matters should require the services of not only one expert but a whole staff to make sure that some great nation is not insulted by the improper seating of its ambassador or some gaudy colonel of his majesty's horse marines at dinner. But, for all that democracy, there was a great dither a few years ago over the grave question whether Mrs. Dolly Gann, the sister of old Charlie Curtis, a blanket Indian and one-time jockey and, incidentally, the best poker-player in town should go in to the dining room before or after Alice Longworth. Old Charlie, himself, once might have preferred a skillet of eggs on a high stool at the Owl lunch but he was vice-president then and people get peculiar ideas after a few years in Washington.

It's a Strange Business But Not an Unusual One

A strange trade was Mr. Cooke's, although he was by no means alone in it for there are Charlie Cookes in all the great capitals, chewing their nails and tearing the sheets in the night over delicate problems of etiquette involving mortals who tie their napkins behind their ears, when they are scoffing in the privacy of their embassies Great Britain's own Charlie Cooke, whatever his name may be, is having his headaches even now, far in advance of the coronation foolishness, about the case of Hailie Selassie and Mussolini's man. Britain doesn't recognize the quest of Abyssinia and Hailie Selassie apparently expects to show up at the party with his umbrella and red underwear and the duke has been popping his eyes and blowing out his cheeks in indignation. If Selassie goes his man won't and Mussolini might whip a war out of that. Do Englishmen want to die over it?

What to do in a case like that? What to do in dealing with an entire corps of obdurate and childish adults who can perceive the most trivial oversights or errors without official insults to the proud and mighty nations which they have the honor to represent? Their trouble is that they do represent their governments and presently come to

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY BETTE DAVIS

(Pinch hitting for Bobbin Coons)

Hollywood — For some reason it is my peculiar fate to make people think I must be like my meanderer. When, on meeting strangers and chiding with them a while, I catch them watching me with a certain expression on their faces, I know what they're thinking. Some of the more forthright have told me they are saying to themselves, "Why, she seems fairly pleasant in real life. How odd!" One particularly frank person remarked that when he first saw me in person he thought I looked distinctly mean.

"You've since obliterated the impression," he said. "At first I thought you had a mean eye and a sneering curl to your lips, and your voice sounded tense as though you might be restraining anger and whip-lash words."

That sort of thing began with "Fog Over Frisco" and "Of Human Bondage." Several degrees were added by "Border Town." At first I was a little dismayed. I talked to other girls who had played "mean" roles, and then to several cinema villains. It bothered me a little that they'd confess no such experiences. Did I really seem "mean" not only on the screen but in person? Was my success in portraying nasty characters due to some streak in my own nature I wasn't aware of?

Then I had some pretty good luck with a few sympathetic roles. This brought an odd reaction from various fans, who wrote urging me to

BLACK CHERRY

The black cherry is distributed over the entire state, but is most common in the southern half on the better soils. It is a medium sized tree, up to 70 feet high and 1 to 3 feet in diameter.

The leaves are similar to those of the chokecherry but usually more gradually tapered at the apex, thicker, with the upper surface shiny, and the teeth on the margin incurved.

The flowers are similar to those of the chokecherry and the fruit is purplish-black with dark purple juicy flesh, slightly bitter, but edible, maturing later than the chokecherry.

The bark is thin, red-brown, becoming blackish and broken into do more likeable heroines before I became fatally typed as a villainess. Gradually all these things I have mentioned have come to mean a good deal to me in the way of encouragement and sincere praise.

It is the net result of these experiences in playing screen meanies plus my own confessed joy in creating such characters, that has made me determined to go right ahead portraying them. To me they offer the greatest breadth, depth and variety of dramatic opportunities. I don't necessarily advocate them for other actresses. Many tell me they couldn't be happy doing them.

I can, now that I'm inured to the reactions I get from doing so, the suspicious looks cast at me by strangers I meet in person; the letters of reproach, alarm, or suggestion that I reform; all of which I have come to regard as praise. Of course I want to do sympathetic characters, too. What I really seek is a nice variety of work within my scope and ability.

9 New Boys Enroll In Y Department

C. C. Bailey, Secretary, Makes Monthly Report to Board

Nine new boys registered for activities at the Y. M. C. A. boy's department during February, according to C. C. Bailey, boy's work secretary. This is an increase of three over February, 1936, when five new boys registered. The new boys last month enrolled in the following divisions: lobby members 4, older boy's work 1, pioneer 1, Friendly Indian 1.

During February the stamp club met four times with 49 boys in attendance. Harold Heiler was guest speaker at an archery club meeting with Sam Leete, club leader, presiding. Ninety-one boys attended the four Friendly Indian club meetings while 64 members attended the Eagles Pioneer sessions. John Goodrich, Frank Dean and Allan Matmiller, sophomore triangle club leaders, reported that 143 members attended 11 meetings during February.

The five H-Y club held 19 meetings with 281 boys attending. Special programs included a trip to the Lawrence college museum by the Rotr H-Y and a camera competition by the president of the Appleton Camera club. Thirty-one interviews were held by Mr. Bailey with boys and young men during the month.

31 Persons Die as Result of Traffic Mishaps in February

Improved driving conditions during the latter part of February were coupled with a sharp increase in traffic fatalities, a report by West A. Burdick, director of the state highway commission's safety department, shows.

In the first 16 days of February, with driving conditions the worst of the winter, only six persons died on Wisconsin highways. Then plows bit down to bare pavement at the south and the sun melted ice from roads in the south and traffic moved faster. The death toll leaped and when the month ended 31 deaths had been marked on the February record.

There were 742 accidents during the month, 31 deaths and 471 injuries. In 236 accidents only property damage was involved. The accidents were classified as car and car 434, car and pedestrian 113, fixed object 42, non-motorist 30, trains 13, street cars 9, bicycles 2, other vehicles 2, horse drawn vehicle 1.

May Offer Scouts Use Of U. S. Equipment

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington — Boy Scouts of America who attend the World Scout Jamboree to be held in the Netherlands in July-August, 1937, will be indebted to the federal government if congress has no objection.

The house has already favorably reported a bill authorizing the war department to loan equipment to the American delegates. The bill also authorizes the commissioner of internal revenue to remit the tax on steamship tickets, and the State Department to issue passports without fee.

If there is no objection, the American Boy Scouts camp will be set up with all manner of U. S. Army equipment. This would include tents, cots, blankets, fire cranes, commissary storage shelves, cock pots and chains, parade-sized flags, water pans, etc.

The Scouts will be required to furnish bond for safe return of the Army's property.

Appleton Women Join in Campaign to Raise Funds For Battle Against Cancer

A WAR, different from any other in that it is designed to save human life instead of take it, is being waged in Appleton this week by women of all civic organizations who started out this morning, 9:30 strong, on an education and financial drive for cancer control under the flag of the women's field army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

Without guns, poison gas or bayonets, this battle has for its "Big Bertha," education. Through lectures, pamphlets, newspaper stories, radio broadcasts and personal visits the women hope to educate people to the facts about cancer in order to arm them against this enemy.

They point out that cancer education should not cause cancer-phobia, but stress the fact that the truth saves many lives each year while ignorance is responsible for thousands of deaths. As women are the natural guardians of the health of their families, the drive is being conducted through the women.

Make Contributions
Each person who enlists as a recruit in the war on cancer contributes $1 to the Cancer War Chest. Of this sum, seven-tenths will be spent where it is raised by the state executive committee of the army which is composed of members of the cancer committee of the Wisconsin Medical society and the state commander of the women's field army, one-tenth will be placed in a contingent fund and the rest will be used by the general staff in the national office for its field work.

All enlistments are voluntary. The drive is being conducted in Appleton under the direction of Mrs. R. J. White, vice commander of the women's field army of the sixth medical district, and Mrs. John Neller and Mrs. Charles Reineck, lieutenants for the city of Appleton. Among those who started out this morning on the city-wide educational and financial drive are Mrs. A. A. Krabbe, Mrs. Cecile Furlinger, Mrs. Kirk Miles, Mrs. Elmer O'Keefe, Mrs. P. J. Chorus Rehearsing for Presentation of 'Elijah'

AN unerring master of the dramatic element in music, Mendelssohn achieved lasting fame and popular approval with his great oratorio, "Elijah," which ranks second only to Handel's "Messiah." This splendid oratorio will be given by Schola Cantorum at Lawrence Memorial chapel Sunday evening, April 18.

Replete with stirring choral passages and grateful solos for tenor, soprano, contralto and baritone voices, the "Elijah" claims even the wholly uninitiated ear. It is a sincere and straightforward setting of the vivid, spontaneous story of Elijah, "a man strong and zealous, full of bitterness and scorn, well nigh the antagonist of the world, yet borne aloft on the wings of Angels," and his struggle to turn the kingdom of Israel back to worship of Jehovah.

The chorus of 150 voices, under the direction of Dean Waterman, is composed of both the concert and freshman a cappella choirs of Lawrence college, the faculty members, and townspeople. Regular rehearsals have been held since January and will continue until the performance.

Assailant of Girl Is Being Sought as Slayer

Chicago—(P)—More than 100 policemen took up the hunt today for a young quick-shooting gunman who is wanted for the slaying of a policeman's wife during an attempted holdup and the ravishing of the 20-year-old daughter of a Jewish rabbi.

Extra police squads and detectives were sent into a south side district after the gunman took the daughter of the rabbi from her carport early Sunday and criminally assaulted her.

On the night of March 11 a gunman of similar description shot and killed Mrs. Mary Irvin, wife of a policeman, before she had time to hand over her purse to him. In both instances the man wore a masquerade mask.

Duffy to Seek Change In Measure on Stamps

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) Washington — Senator F. Ryan Duffy of Fond du Lac will take steps to amend his "stamp collectors' bill" to permit publications of pictures of United States stamps in newspaper philatelic columns as well as in philatelic journals.

"The truth is," Duffy explained, "I didn't think of it. Being a little of a collector myself, and helping my boys with their collections, I just got tired of not being able to see pictures of our own stamps in any of the catalogs, while pictures of the stamps of all other countries are there."

"I have heard from virtually every metropolitan newspaper in the country and, of course, I think that the newspapers should be permitted to print any kind of picture of a stamp which the catalogs and collectors' journals are allowed to publish."

The laws against counterfeiting prohibit the publishing of a picture of any U. S. stamp or currency. Pictures of stamps of other countries may be published, with a bar across them to deface sufficiently to prevent use for counterfeiting, but not enough to prevent the collector from seeing what the stamp looks like.

Duffy suggests some such technique for United States stamps, to be provided in regulations, if his bill is passed.

Michigan Solons Near Showdown On Death Penalty

Committee to Decide This Week on Whether to Report Bill

Lansing, Mich. —(P)—The death penalty issue approached a showdown in the legislature today.

Members of the house judiciary committee indicated they were prepared to vote this week on whether the Ward bill, which would provide for electrocution of convicted murderers, should be released to the floor. Few members doubted it would be reported out, and none doubted this would be the signal for a fight. The issue has bobbed up regularly in legislative sessions, always occasioning verbal fireworks before it was defeated.

Representative William A. Ward, Republican, Thompsonville, the introducer, planned to recount a number of recent murders in Michigan and to assert the death penalty would have been a deterrent.

Pressure also was being put on the committee for an early report on the so-called small loan interest bill, introduced by Representative George L. Teachout, Democrat, Flint. It would reduce the interest on loans of up to $300 to 14 per cent. The maximum rate now is 24 per cent. There was some indication a compromise rate of 21 per cent might be included in the bill as finally reported. A subcommittee composed of Representatives Teachout, Walker N. Stock-fish, Democrat, Hamtrack and Edward H. Fenlon, Democrat, St. Ignace, planned to report back to the full committee probably Tuesday. The committee report was expected to follow within a short time.

The house reassembles tonight with nothing outstanding on the calendar. A fight seemed certain for Tuesday's session, however, with two highly controversial measures awaiting a vote at that time. They are the Brown-Berka bill, to extend the installment-payment system to property taxes delinquent for 1933, 1934 and 1935, and the Helme bill to add the lieutenant governor to the state administrative board. The latter bill has been challenged on constitutional grounds. Representative Vernon J. Brown, Republican, Mason, said he expected a last minute attempt by opponents to emasculate the delinquent tax bill.

BIDS DUE WEDNESDAY

Bids on two light trucks and a cement mixer sought by the city must be in to the city clerk's office Wednesday. The equipment will be purchased for the street department.

Badgers to Seek Funds For Fight on Disease

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) Washington — Wisconsin members of congress are taking due notice of a memorial from the Wisconsin legislature, asking that they make every effort possible to obtain passage of legislation to provide necessary funds for continuing federal aid for Bangs disease control.

The memorials have been sent to both house and senate members from Wisconsin. In addition to urging legislation authorizing appropriation of substantial sums for Bangs disease control, the Wisconsin legislature took that opportunity to thank Badger members for their efforts in past sessions.

In the budget, a total of $142,400 is recommended for Bangs disease in the entire country. If Wisconsin members decide the part that allotted to Wisconsin would be insufficient, they will attempt to increase the amount recommended. Rep. Meritt Holt of Black River Falls said he would appear before the appropriations committee if necessary and it is expected Senator Robert LaFollette and Representative Harry Sauthoff of Madison will represent the state.

Hold Stopper to Win Established Tricks

BY ELY CULBERTSON
Only thirteen tricks in all can be won in the play of a bridge hand. It does not help you to establish winning cards if you never get the lead to use them for they will fall worthless on your opponents' established winners. Therefore, as a rule, you should attempt to establish and win your tricks before your opponents can establish and win theirs.

What is a Stopper?
A card with which you can win a trick in the opponents' strong suit is called a stopper. While you have a stopper in their suit, they cannot run their tricks uninterrupted. To establish their winners they must give you a trick with your stopper, and then you can cash whatever winners you have been able to establish.

At no trump bids, only aces or guarded honors are stoppers, preventing the opponents from running a long suit. At trump contracts, any trump card is a stopper. An opponent's long suit, although it may be established, cannot win tricks while you hold any trump.

TODAY'S HAND.
It is particularly fitting, I think, that my Gold Book should be in evidence on the Yukon Trail. Here is a letter I recently received from Dawson.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson:
"A bidding situation arose during play at the Bear Creek Bridge club which you might consider worthy of publication and comment particularly in view of the employment by North of the grand slam force."

The bidding:

"South is of the opinion that North, after South's raise in hearts, should have bid five no trump, unconditionally forcing, and on the next round have bid five no trump, showing the four aces. Such types of hands are dealt with on pages 278 of the Gold Book under the heading of 'How to show all four aces.' North contends that, in view of the strength shown by South, the bid of five no trump, the grand slam force, was correct and the South, holding the king-queen of agreed suit, should have bid seven instead of six hearts. South thought that, having opened no trump vulnerable, North expected at least one ace in his hand. Lacking this, notwithstanding the grand slam force, he signed off at six."

"Yours truly,
"A. B. Dawson, Y. T."

In my opinion, North's bidding, was perfect up to his last bid of seven hearts. South's failure to bid seven over the five no trump grand slam force, which demands that partner bid seven if he holds two of the top three honors in the agreed trump suit, should have been evident. The grand slam would require a trump finesse. As we all know, grand slams with finesses are to be rigidly eschewed.

I will not deny a certain sympathy for South, being forced to bid a grand slam when he had opened a vulnerable no trump without a single ace, but one should either play a convention or not play it. South had more than sufficient justification for his opening to trump bid in the possession of five honor tricks, and the fact that these included no ace should have cut no ice even in Alaska. It was simply up to him to follow orders, and answer the five no trump honor holding.

TODAY'S QUESTION.
Question: Partner opened the bidding with one spade. What is my proper response with ♠ Q 8 4 3 ♥ K 6 3 ♦ K Q 5 ♣ A 6 2 1?

Answer: Three spades.

My Neighbor Says—

An atomizer or small spray should be used when watering seeds planted in the house. The spray keeps the soil just moist enough and does not bury the seeds as water sprinkled from watering can is likely to.

When creaming shortening and butter for a cake save time by mashing them together with a potato masher. This will not harm your mixture and is certainly a time saver.

To preserve leftover pickles or pimientos, put in a glass tumbler and cover with salad oil.

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. HARRINGTON
Garden makers who are fond of magnolias often wonder why these shrubs fail to thrive in their gardens. The answer very often is found in the fact that the shrubs were not planted at the right time. Magnolias are extremely particular in this respect. They are among the shrubs which do not like being moved in the fall. They should be transplanted in the spring, about seven to ten days before the time when they commence active growth, which means in most parts of the country, April and May. Like the rhododendrons, magnolias should have a somewhat acid soil. Lime and fresh manure, which are indispensable for making plants grow, should never be given to magnolias. (Copyright, 1937)

Solar System Questions

I—THE SUN
After giving a talk on the solar system lately, I received a letter from a school pupil, and one of the paragraphs in the letter was this:

of gases of many kinds, all very hot. Some of these gases would turn into certain kinds of metal if they cooled down.

By using the "spectroscopy" scientists have found that the sun contains nearly the same elements as the earth. These elements include oxygen, iron, nickel, copper, tin and hydrogen.

The metals in the outside of the sun are in the form of gas because of their heated condition. If they were not so hot they would be in liquid form and if they were cool they would turn into solid form.

"Is the earth farther away from the sun in summer than in winter?"

Strange as it may seem, the earth is nearly 3,000,000 miles farther from the sun while we are having summer than during our winter. We must remember, however, that this is not true of the southern half of the earth. People in Australia, Argentina and South Africa have summer during what we call the winter months. January and February are hot months in those lands.

The average distance of the sun from the earth is nearly 93,000,000 miles, so the change in distance between winter and summer is only a little more than three per cent. That is not the cause of the change of the seasons on our earth. The real cause is the tilt of the earth's axis. Because of the tilt the sun rays strike the northern part of the earth more directly during our summer, and less directly in our winter.

Explains Children's Play Ways During Various Ages

BY ANGELO PATRI

There are sometimes troubles in the play ways of their children, often needlessly, for children play in different ways during the different stages of their growth. Little children of two and three years like to be together for short periods. If they are together too long they become very tired and fall into temper and tears. They seem to enjoy being close to each other looking at each other, rather than playing with each other. Now and then there will be a common interest, but each attending to his own as when each builds his own block house. Rarely will they enjoy working on the same one. They are individualists.

The five-year-old children, and those close to that age, like to have a central interest. Two or three of them will play truckmen, but each must have his own bit of equipment. One will hold on to the truck or wagon, one will claim the shovel, another the privilege of selling the sand or bricks on the job. There is a common interest, but very little cooperation. Now and then there will be a first fight when all tools are laid down and taken a hand in business. These spots are rarely serious enough for grown-ups to take a hand in settling. Occasionally one of the group will use his tool as a weapon, but only occasionally. He is the rare child, usually the one lacking in control in other ways.

The little girls of eight and nine are demanded, rules are strictly enforced, play house and each takes her part in the drama. They argue a bit about who shall be the mother, but usually they get along well enough. The boys of this age argue loudly and they go to the lot to play ball and use three quarters of the time in standing up to each other and calling, "You're out. I am not." "You are so." Grown people lose all patience with this proceeding and wonder why they don't get down to business and play ball. They are playing. Just let them play it out. Their lungs need the exercise as well as the rest of their bodies.

It is in the teens that play is organized and the teams begin to take on form and power. Now uniforms

Permanents Are Steadily Improving

BY ELSIE PIERCE

THE majority of women today depend upon permanents, rather than Mother Nature, to put waves in their hair. And where once the most courageous of the fair sex attempted one or two waves a year, today most women get four and five—depending upon how quickly the hair grows out from the roots. One reason why we are getting more permanents and with less fear of qualms is the precise, professional manner in which permanents are given. One needs specialized knowledge and experience to give a permanent wave; and because of the keen competition in the beauty field only the fittest survive. Women know that. And in sitting for a permanent they choose an operator with a reputation for success.

Another reason for the increase in the number of women getting permanents and the number of permanents that each patron has per year is the fact that permanents are more and more successful. By successful I mean two things: one the sureness with which a permanent "takes"; two the ease with which it "keeps."

Few Problem Heads

Until a year or two ago there were many so-called "problem heads." Baby fine hair; dyed or bleached hair; blonde or gray hair; abused hair. Now there are comparatively few heads that cannot be permanently waved. Special solutions have been developed; test curls are given in the better salons that predict pretty well, in advance, whether the permanent will "take" and how well. If one strand or test curl doesn't take the wave another strand is treated to a different solution and different steaming time. Finally the operator hits on the success formula and it's a hit-miss proposition, either.

Special oils have recently been developed which, added to the regular permanent wave solution, make the wave stronger. If you've never had a really successful permanent before that doesn't mean that your hair won't take a good wave. If your hair has always been limp without coming to it, the new type of oils added to the solution should make for a tighter wave. This doesn't mean a kink by any means. What's more these oils actually have a conditioning effect on the hair, making it more vital, more lustrous.

Cooperate With Your Operator

There are a few things you must do, however, to cooperate with your operator and make your wave that much more certain of success. First, condition your hair all year. Second, tell the truth—if you have had henna treatments, dye or tint treatments, if you have had an operation a short time before your wave: if you have been ill, particularly with a fever. Anything like that might affect the success of your wave, so help your operator intelligently.

My bulletin "The Permanent—Long May It Wave" will give you specific hints on care of the hair before the permanent and care of the wave afterward. Send a self-addressed, stamped 3-cent envelope for the bulletin to Ely Culbertson, care of the Appleton Post-Crescent. (Copyright, 1937)

MENT OF A SISTER AND BROTHER TOGETHER

Dear Mrs. Post: By brother and I have both just become engaged, but no one has as yet made any public announcement. My parents would like to announce the engagement. However, my brother believes this would be unfair to his fiancée's family. Don't you think under the circumstances it would be fitting for my parents to announce the double event?

Answer: I don't see how you could do this because the girl's family always announces an engagement. That is announcements are sent by her family to the newspapers. Apart from this, it would be entirely proper for your mother to give a party that evening for both of you and your fiancées together. The only objection is if her family is intending to give a party on that same evening. In this case, either your parents or they would have to change the date.

Dear Mrs. Post: My son is to marry a girl whose family is separated by divorce. She herself lives with an aunt who has practically brought her up, although her father has educated her and she is friendly with him, and his second wife place, the necessary equipment, and allow the adequate time. After that the children have to be left to themselves for the most part. It is well to have some mature and understanding person in the background, but the background is, where he ought to stay.

Every playground for children is a valuable asset to the community. It is as valuable as the school, as necessary as the church. It extends the influence of home and school and church and closes the reform schools. Children who play well are certain to live well ever after.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Men Do Not Desire to Marry Career Women

BY DOROTHY DIX

The one thing girls crave to know more than anything else in the world is what kind of women men want to marry. Hereofore this information has been withheld from them. The masculine preference in wives was a dark and unfathomable mystery, and the best the poor creatures could do was just to go on guessing at it and praying for luck in hitting some man's fancy.

DOROTHY DIX

Now, however, light has been thrown upon the subject. A group of scientific investigators who have been questioning men as to the type of wife they desire report that thirty-seven men out of a hundred want to marry an old-fashioned girl who likes to stay at home, cook and take care of babies. Twenty-seven per cent of the men interviewed wanted a woman of social distinction for a wife. Twenty-two per cent sought one of spiritual character. Women with artistic leanings had few or no takers. Career women were simply not in the running at all.

That the quiet, domestic girl who is mother's little helper should lead all the remainder of her sex in masculine favor and be the most successful preference in wives is startling and amazing news. No one will be more startled and amazed by it than the aforesaid quiet and domestic girl who is sitting at home in the bosom of her family reading an improving book, or embroidering dainties for her hope chest; that she sees no immediate prospect of using while her flamboyant sisters who have none of the qualities that men profess to admire so much have stepped out to night clubs with their dates.

Of course, no girl knows what hidden longings are in the heart of a man, but judging from observation she is not to be blamed for concluding that a modern young man pining for an old-fashioned virtue in young women they give a remarkably successful exhibition of suppressed desires. In fact, so far as the domestic girl sees it, the girl with the fewest inhibitions and the least domesticity goes the farthest and the fastest and has the most beaux and the best times.

That this is sedry true we are bound to admit. Men, especially young men, are not attracted to women by their good qualities and virtues they do not marry them because they would make good wives. No woman was ever a belle because so long in their wedding clothes, or else to have to dress and undress and redress again. (Copyright, 1937)

Dear Mrs. Post: Does it matter what hour the reception is held in a case where the bride is being married at a private ceremony with just the fewest members of the immediate families present? I mean, must my reception which includes others follow immediately after the marriage service the way it is supposed to normally?

Answer: The only objection to having a long wait between the service and the reception is that it is very inconvenient for people to sit so long in their wedding clothes, or else to have to dress and undress and redress again. (Copyright, 1937) she had taken half a dozen college degrees. No boy ever asked a girl to a dance because she was kind to her old grandmother, or could make a good chocolate pie. It is the pretty little girls with a come-hither look in their eyes, and not the household angels, who have men flocking around them like bees around a honey-pot.

Hence, it being a matter of common knowledge that there are so many sweet, shy little violets who were born to blush unseen in their own parlors, and that the world is filled with old maids who were cut out by Nature to make ideal wives, it is flabbergasting to learn that it is the old-fashioned domestic type of wife, with all the traditional feminine virtues, that men prefer as wives.

However, this apparent inconsistency in the taste of men for women need surprise no one, for it has ever been their wont to marry for one thing and then expect their wives to be something totally different. They are attracted by glamour, but they want hard reality to live with. A man falls in love with a gadabout because she is a gay companion who is always ready to go places and do things, but he wants a stay-at-home wife who will never want to go further than the nursery or the kitchen.

He likes to take a girl out who is a fashion-plate and who makes everybody rubber who sees her, but he wants his wife to cut her dress budget and hunt for bargains in a basement. A man may run around with wild women who haven't a moral or a principle their whole constitution, but he wants his wife to believe in God and say her prayers and be without reproach. And so, perhaps, that explains why the old-fashioned domestic girl so seldom has dates, but is just the kind of a wife that every man wants. It's after marriage that he prefers her. DOROTHY DIX. Recipes For Hot Cross Buns
(Served During Holy Week)

1 cake corn- 1 teaspoon pressed yeast- cinnamon
1 cup lukewarm- 1 teaspoon water- nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt 1 cup lukewarm
4 tablespoons milk
sugar 1-3 cup fat,
1 cup chopped melted
raisins
Mix the yeast and water. After 5 minutes add 2 cups of the flour and the remaining ingredients. Beat 3 minutes or until very light. Place in a smooth bowl. Add the remaining flour and mix until well blended. Place in a buttered bowl. Butter the top of dough to prevent a crust from forming. Cover with a cloth and set in a room of moderate temperature (72 degrees). When the dough has doubled in size (which will require about 4 hours) roll it out on a floured board until the dough is two-thirds of an inch thick. Using a two-inch cookie cutter, cut out the buns. Place half an inch apart on a greased pan or baking sheet. Cover with a cloth and let double in size. (About 3 hours will be needed.)

After the buns have risen well cover them with the topping and bake for 15 minutes in a moderate oven. Place crosses of frosting on the tops. (The crosses may also be pressed on top of the soft buns before they are baked.)

Topping
1 egg yolk 1-3 cup milk
2 tablespoons sugar
Mix the ingredients and apply on a pastry brush or a cloth fastened onto a fork.

Lighter-colored honeys have a milder flavor than the darker-colored varieties.

Seven and one-half minutes is the period of time of greatest cleaning when clothes are washed in washing machine. After that length of time clothes take on a gray hue due to dirt being washed back into them.

Principle of Mob Rule Contained in Stand of Strikers

Ultimatum in Michigan Unprecedented in Peace Time, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—The "sit-down" strike is under a constitution, but the constitution is not the mob says it is.

This, in effect, is a new version of American law formally announced by the several chairmen of the committees of "sit-down" strikers who have forcibly seized possession of the Chrysler Motor plants in Detroit. The exact language contained in a letter addressed to the government in the state is worth examining because of the historic importance it may assume in the future. The letter says in conclusion: "You can use your influence to see that our grievances are adjusted. Or you can use the state's troops to try to force us out."

The first way will lead to industrial peace and the elimination of the cause for strikes. The second way will lead to bloodshed and violence and more strikes.

We are resolved to protect our rights to our jobs with our lives. The choice is fairly up to you."

New in Peace Time

Never before has an organized group of American citizens—at least in a so-called period of peace—issued such an ultimatum to the governor of a state, ever before in the last half-century or more, has constituted authority in America been given a more direct challenge. Courts of law last week issued formal orders to return seized property to lawful owners but these orders have been flagrantly ignored and instead a document, which argues in effect the right of revolution is widely proclaimed.

Every state in the union is guaranteed a republican form of government by the federal constitution, and there is provision for the summoning of federal troops whenever the governor of a state shall so request. If Governor Murphy needs help to enforce the orders of the Michigan courts, he can get it promptly by asking the federal government.

But there will be no such request. And the governor of Michigan probably will not use force to oust the strikers from the motor plants. He does not believe in violence and bloodshed as a means of solving industrial disputes. Nor do many other American citizens who are watching from the sidelines the first big clash of physical force with law in an organized labor controversy since the general strike of post-war days in Seattle, Washington.

Two Sides to Question
If there was a time for the triumph of reason, the physical force it is in the Michigan dilemma. In such circumstances, the processes of public opinion must be made vocal and effective. The first step is to recognize that there are two sides to the controversy, but only one solution.

Spokesmen for the strikers contend that the motor companies have refused to obey the Wagner Labor Law, which calls for majority rule for a majority of the employees. Assuming that the motor companies have refused to obey the law, which, of course, is not true, as will subsequently be demonstrated, the argument of the "sit-down" strikers is that, because employers get court injunctions to enforce laws, the strikers are justified in taking the law into their own hands.

It will be recalled that there rarely has been a lynching of a negro in which the mob has not used the same argument, namely that the law is too slow and usually favors defendants and hence it is necessary to string up the victims as an example to others.

Opinion Enlightened
Lynch law has for generations been condemned, but only recently has the true meaning of lynch law become apparent to the American people, especially in the south, where enlightened opinion has been pushing for a prosecution of lynchers.

Minorities of all kinds—minority religions, minority races, minority groups are in danger when so-called majorities take the law into their own hands or put themselves above courts and judges and attempt to say what the law is.

In the present situation, condemnation should not merely be visited on the "sit-down" strikers, but upon the men who lead them astray. And the labor leaders are in a sense hardly to be blamed when they read encouraging words for their concept of law given them by the secretary of labor in the president's cabinet and now by Chairman James M. Landis of the securities and exchange commission and also by Ferdinand Pecora, a local justice in New York state.

Mr. Pecora told a senate committee last week that business and industry had been engaged in "sit-down" strikes against various laws, his inference being that two wrongs made a right; or at least that the workers could not be blamed if they adopted the same tactics.

Sees New Concept
Mr. Landis, who is shortly to become dean of the Harvard law school, told a convention of law students in a public address that the "sit-down" strike might involve new concepts of property rights and he intimated that perhaps they might ultimately be held legal.

The significance of these comments is that Messrs. Landis and Pecora are being mentioned as probable nominees for two of the places on the supreme court of the United States to be created by President Roosevelt's plan for enlarging the highest court in the land is adopted by congress.

When labor is encouraged to believe that they have property rights in their jobs and can enforce those rights by taking the law into their own hands, the idea of physical combat and fratricidal strife is directly encouraged. If labor does have a property right in a plant, if it has elements of ownership, then there must be some corresponding sense of responsibility and some way to assess labor with the risks of managing the property. If a man owns a piece of property, he must accept the responsibilities of ownership and render himself amenable to risks of financial loss to others who may be joint owners with him. Under no sensible concept of law can an owner impair the rights of another owner to earn money honestly from the use of that property.

Can Have Test Case
But assuming that the "sit-down" strikers may have a property right in their job, there's a quick way to determine the legality. It is to obtain from a higher court an injunction restraining the Michigan strikers from evicting the strikers, and the issue can, on a narrow matter, be carried through the regular processes of law to a final determination without prejudicing the interests of either side.

As a matter of fact, the C. I. O., which is directing the Chrysler strike, apparently does not wish to avail itself of the law even when it is on the side of labor. There have been no suits filed in federal court in Michigan to enforce the Wagner act. It is in more or less favorable labor than the Wagner relations act. It is this law which the employers are accused of defying. It does provide for majority rule in the plants. But, under the terms of that law, the workers must ask the national labor board to order an election to determine what union or unions shall represent a majority of the workers.

No such former request has been made by the C. I. O. or any other of the Chrysler workers for an election. Hence, the Chrysler company has not defied the Wagner act nor any order of the labor board. Even if the labor board should issue an order, the Chrysler company has the right to ask the courts to protect the rights of the minority of the employees who do not wish to accede to the demands of the majority of agents or spokesmen. Every man has a right to choose his own agent, just as he has a right to choose his own lawyer to represent him in court or in any business negotiations.

But the processes of law are open to both sides. There are inevitable delays, but justice is better as a rule because it is slow and not hasty than a mob that is like the frenzy of a mob that lynches people.

Thirty years ago, Charles Evans Hughes, in repelling attacks on the courts in the state of New York, where he was governor, said: "We are under a constitution, but the constitution is what the judges say it is." This quotation was used recently by President Roosevelt and was wrongly attributed to "Chief Justice Hughes," thus giving the impression that Mr. Hughes, when on the bench, had somehow defended a supposed arbitrariness by justices of the supreme court. Actually, Mr. Hughes was not talking in 1907 of the federal constitution, but of the dignity and authority of the state of New York with respect to safeguarding human liberties as well as property rights.

But while that quotation has played a prominent part in the controversy begun by Mr. Roosevelt as to the functions of the supreme court, it has remained for the "sit-down" strikers in Michigan to enunciate a doctrine which completely the process of undermining the whole judicial system by the simple means of ignoring it, a doctrine which cannot be more vividly expressed than in this sentence: "We are under a constitution, but the constitution is what the mob says it is."

Under The Capitol Dome

Madison—Irishmen in the legislative and civil service, while Groves is a national authority on taxation.

Time works many changes in men's fortunes. Twenty years ago A. R. McDonald of Kaukauna was a regular legislative observer for the railway unions of the state. Then, 13 years ago, Governor Blaine chose him as a brotherhood representative on the public service commission. Today he is appearing before legislative committees in the interest of the railroads, often in opposition to the causes he espoused during his early legislative career.

The recent report of the state office building commission that the state treasury will pay out more than $119,000 to owners of Madison office buildings this year for state office rentals during 1937 gives point to the often repeated proposal that a central office building, connected with the capitol annex, be built.

The commission has recommended that the legislature appropriate $800,000 for the construction of the state office building. The balance of the required amount, or 45 per cent, it is hoped can be financed by a PWA loan.

Assemblyman Harold A. Lytle, (Dem.), Green Bay, made his first speech since coming to the legislature the other day. Lytle arose to defend the compulsory painters' license bill under consideration in his house, and pointed to the advantages of apprenticeships training in the trade. He also offered an amendment which would allow licensed painters to accept contracts elsewhere during a strike.

Pot-pourri: Assemblyman Albert D. Shimek of Algoma was lured the other day when calling for information by telephone at one of the state departments, his call was transferred seven times. Thomas Duncan, the governor's assentive executive secretary, has been spending much time lately in the senate chamber. A deficiency appropriation for the operation of the G. A. R. home at Waupaca has been requested by Commandant Holden of that institution. Senators Severson and Mack and Assemblyman Handrick are a little proud of their influence with the conservation commission, which recently changed the closed season date for hook and line fishing on the Wolf river from April 20 to April 10, as a concession to Waupaca and Outagamie county fishermen.

The traffic in obscene matter through the mails is a million-dollar business.

Lobby of Hotel Will be Scene of Milking Contest

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau)
Oshkosh—The ornate lobby of this city's finest hotel, the Raulif, has been the scene of many queer starting events in the last few months, including a hilarious New Year's eve and a gathering of hen-pecked husbands who formed an organization for their protection known as the Royal Order of the Doghouse.

But the blase salesmen who make the hotel their headquarters will certainly raise their eyebrows Tuesday afternoon when two pedigreed cows are led over the threshold and two determined women milkers swing into action to settle the milking championship of Wisconsin, as a feature of the 65th Annual Wisconsin Dairyman's Association convention.

Mrs. Margaret Dreger, Fort Atkinson, is the State Champion by virtue of having coaxed 186 pounds of milk from a Holstein cow in exactly three minutes.

The challenger is Mrs. Arthur Neumann, Larson, who last Saturday in a contest to select the Winnebago County champion not only beat 18 county women but broke the record of Mrs. Dreger by producing 187 pounds in the three minutes.

In the contest Saturday, directed by Miss Helen Briggs, county club leader and held at the Winnebago State Hospital, Mrs. Neumann easily outdistanced her competitors. Mrs. Robert Williams, Omro, placed second with 122 pounds, Mrs. Harry Wilke, Oshkosh, route 2, 119 pounds; Mrs. Harry Wilke, Oshkosh, route 2, 119 pounds; Mary Vaughn, Pickett, 117 pounds; and Mrs. Herman Dellerman, Oshkosh, 115 pounds. Consolation prize was won by Mrs. John Erdman, Neenah.

What's New at the Library

Drama and the stage leads this week's library column, for recent shipments of books received at Appleton Public Library include a full-length play, "The Eternal Road" by Franz Werfel, as well as two books on the Irish theater and literature.

"The Eternal Road" as staged by Max Reinhardt in New York is one of the spectacles of modern times. It is in four parts and is played on a stage with five different levels. Depicting the heritage of the Jewish race, it shows great events in Biblical history, the lives of the prophets, warriors, and princes in a literary style which makes it a play for reading no less than for acting. It is composed partly in a meter which Werfel invented, that is, a descending rhythm, and the effect aimed at is one of chant. The author, Franz Werfel, is famous for his fiction work, "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh."

Seven full-length plays and three one-acts appear in the volume, "Plays of Changing Ireland" by Curran Canfield for the purpose of charting the course which the new drama of Ireland has taken in the last 10 years. Experimentation in the drama now being carried on in Dublin is presented at first hand in this book, and examples of the work of revolutionary younger playwrights as well as the latest plays of established authors have been chosen in order that the whole development may be followed. Of the eight dramatists represented here, the plays of only two, Yeats and Lennox Robinson, have been published before in America.

A new history of Irish literature and drama in the English tongue, entitled, "Irish Literature and Drama" by Stephen Gwynn, attempts to explain why Ireland which up to the end of the last century seemed barren of a national literature can now challenge comparison with that of Scotland since Sir Walter Scott. It traces its rise from the time when Ireland ceased to be Irish-speaking and began to express a national consciousness in the adopted language.

Ushering in holy week, two more books on religious subjects have been added to the library reading at the library. They are "A Faith for Today" by Harris Franklin Rall, which discusses the meaning of faith and religion as the author sees, also sin, salvation and the meaning and place of the Bible; and "Missions Tomorrow" by Kenneth Scott Laourette, which is an evaluation of the modern missions movement, a description of conditions in which it was set and of the contribution it made to the world, and an analysis of the factors and problems confronting missions today.

One of the important books which have been received at the library recently is "The Nile" by Emil Ludwig which is the life story of that famous river told by a famous writer. He begins not with the pyramids at the mouth of the river, but with the waterfalls at its source, and he divides its life into periods of "torment" and "perilous youth, acquisitive man-

Oshkosh Youth Wins 1st Place in Contest

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)
Madison—Speaking for adoption of a policy of neutrality and the discarding of the policy of collective security, James Doyle, Oshkosh, senior class president at the University of Wisconsin, declared in his oration which won the $50 first prize in the state peace oratorical contest last weekend.

Speaking on the university campus in competition with 200 students from 24 middle western colleges, Doyle advocated nationalization of munitions, a ban on sale of billegers' securities, and embargoes on water materials as means of achieving permanent peace.

"Above all else we must recognize that while men may hate war, they can hardly love peace for its own sake. . . . Men can hate peace when it means monotony and poverty and the speed-up and the bread line. To make them hate war in any intelligible sense we must construct a peace time society whose members can walk in dignity, honor and prosperity. Doyle called his oration, "The Clash of Symbols."

Shawano and Marion Take Regional Cage Honors

Former Winner Over New London By 25 to 20 Count

Latter Wallops Sevastopol In One-Sided Contest, 38 to 7

NEW LONDON REGIONAL BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT SATURDAY'S RESULTS
Shawano 25, New London 20 (Class B).
Marion 35, Sevastopol 7 (Class C).
Lena 22, Seymour 20 (Class C third place.)

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
NEW LONDON—Shawano High school basketball team made three in a row over New London for the 1936-37 cage season here Saturday night in Class B regional competition and won the right to represent this section of the state in the state tournament at Madison, March 31 to April 3. The score was 25 to 20, and although the game was close Shawano dominated most of the way and New London's fate was sealed when Bob Yost, center, went out on personnel and was followed a few minutes later by Ned Demming, guard.

Marion won the Class C regional title by walloping Sevastopol, 35 to 7, in a game that was even worse than the score would indicate. Marion also will compete in the state meet as result of its win. Third place in Class C competition went to Lena with a 22 to 20 victory over Seymour.

In the New London-Shawano game, the Indians took a 2 to 1 lead on a basket by Reed, about five minutes after play started. Just before the quarter ended Demming put New London ahead, 3 to 2, when he scored from just outside the free throw circle.

N. L. Trails At Half
Nader's one handed shot and Demming's free throw pushed the New London total to 6 to 3 but the Indians then started a steady comeback march and they held an 8 to 6 lead at the half. During the two periods play was just about as even as the score showed except that it was obvious Bob Yost, New London center, wasn't playing up to his usual game because of a bad cold. He had tired quickly and his foul-up shots and rebound tries were conspicuous by their absence.

Between halves Yost told Coach Stacy of New London he doubted whether he would be able to stand the pace although he remained in the game and played excellent ball in trying to stop Robbins. Big Shawano center, New London tied the score at 10-10 about midway in the period and then Demming gave the team a 12 to 10 edge when he dribbled in to score. Baskets by Grignon and Robbins gave Shawano the lead again and a goal by Robbins left the Indians leading 16 to 12 at the end of the third quarter.

On the first scoring play of the fourth period Yost left the game on fouls. Demming's basket brought New London within two points of a tie but Grignon got a basket for Shawano which was offset by Nader's two free throws. Backed against a free throw for Shawano and then a basket and the Indians led 21 to 16. The lead became 25 to 16 when Demming drew his fourth personal and left the game.

Losers Fight
Despite the fact two of its stars were missing New London continued to battle hard and a couple free throws and Stern's followup shot left New London trailing by only three points, 23 to 20. With just a few seconds left to play, however, Reed sank a followup for Shawano and when the ball went through the hoop New London's last chance to rally went with it.

Marion's victory over Sevastopol was even more one-sided than the 37 to 7 score. Marion started rather slowly and led only 6 to 3 at the quarter. In the second period, however, the Purple and Gold started to click more consistently and at the half the count was 19 to 4. The third and fourth quarters saw the Purple and Gold continue to pile up points. Marion wasn't passing as well as against Lena the night before but at that it got around and if it has made only a fraction of the one million, two hundred and fifty-five thousand, six hundred and seventy-two shots it missed the game would have been won. Sevastopol made one free throw and that was all.

Lena won third place honors in Class C whatever that may be by downing Seymour, 22 to 20. Seymour outscored Lena on field goals but it turned in 30 fouls on which Lena scored 16 points. Seymour made only four points on nineteen free throws while Lena counted on ten or twenty-four tries. Seymour lost three players on fouls.

Seymour led 7 to 5 at the quarter, 9 to 7 at the half and trailed 15 to 19 at the third quarter. With 30 seconds left to play and Seymour trailing, 22 to 20, Reed, guard, blew two free shots that would have earned a tie.

Superior Central to Meet Beloit In Opening Game of Class A Meet

MILWAUKEE—Twenty-two high school basketball teams survivors of a long series of eliminations, began polishing off their attacks today for the final drive toward three Wisconsin interscholastic athletic association championships.

The two dozen quintets, eight each from three classes scaled according to school enrollments, remained undefeated at the end of the eliminations Saturday night. These 24 will fight it out for the titles in the final starting at Madison, March 30.

Three hundred sixty-nine teams formed the original starting field in the district and regional eliminations from which the 24 finalists were selected.

The feature attraction of the first round of the Class A finals is the opening game between Beloit and Superior Central, the defending champion. These two teams have held the state crown the last five years and if Superior Central captures it again this year the northwesterners have equalled Beloit's performance of having taken the championship three times in a row.

Superior Central is the only defending champion to reach the finals, the 1936 class B and C title holders having been eliminated in the district and regional points earlier this month. Other pointers for

Braddock Refuses Latest Cash Offer For Heavy Title Bout

New York—Max Schmeling sewed another patch on the heavy-weight crazy-quilt today with a $350,000 offer for Champion Jim Braddock to defend his title in Berlin, but for all the stir it created among those concerned, it might as well have been a puff of wind.

The champion, through his Manager Joe Gould, turned down the offer because it wasn't up to his previously set minimum of $400,000. Madison Square Garden, which was offered $50,000 by Schmeling to release the fight to Germany instead of promoting it here on June 3, cold-shouldered the proposition pending completion of its plan for legal action against the Braddock-Joe Louis bout in Chicago.

Schmeling accompanied his offer with an ultimatum to both Braddock and the Garden.

"Either it is accepted by tomorrow," he stated through the American representative, Joe Jacobs, "or it will be withdrawn. In that case, we will go into training for the June 3 fight, and will stand on our contract rights."

State Volleyball Champions Win 2 Matches at Y Gym

Defeat Oshkosh Elks, Appleton in Straight Games

WAUKESHA volleyballers proved their right to their title of state champions last Saturday night at the Y. M. C. A. as they won over the Oshkosh Elks squad and the local Y team. The Spring City team used successive hits and spikes to pile up points while their opponents battled unsuccessfully against a faultless defense.

Oshkosh was beaten, 15 to 5, by the state champions in the first game and then the Waukesha boys added the second victory 15 to 7. The Elks pushed the champs to the limit in the third game, but Sherrill, the big Waukesha spiker, came through with several kills to tie the score and then put Waukesha in front 15 to 13.

Meeting the Appleton Y team in the second match, Waukesha scored a 15 to 0 shutout and then won the second game 15 to 6. Appleton came out strong in the third game and went ahead 15 to 3 in the first set, however, gave the state champions a 15 to 12 verdict.

Appleton volleyballers settled an old score with Oshkosh as they copped two out of three games. The local Y team won 15 to 7 in the first game and dropped the second 12 to 15. It can't back in the third game with a 15 to 5 victory to even the season's series. The victory and losses Saturday night gave the Appleton squad a record of 13 defeats and 8 victories for the season.

Members of the Appleton team were: Spikers—Captain Eugene Mullen, Dr. R. V. Landis, Percy Manning, Carl Kozietzke, Carleton Feary and the Rev. C. M. Schendel. Setup men—Robert Heiss, Robert Potter, Bert Norling, Frank Hammer and Dr. Guy Carlson.

Two matches will be played in the two weeks by the Appleton Squad. It will meet the New London team at New London Tuesday night and on Tuesday, March 30, they will play a return match with the Score Board Tavern team at Sheboygan.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN

BY FREDERICK JACKSON

SYNOPSIS—When Count Vronski, who is blackmailing Anne Phelps with love letters, is shot dead in her studio, at least three persons are nearby: Anne, Clarke Bigelow and Karsanoff, the glamorous dancer. They hide the corpse during a party, then Bigelow and Dr. Austrelitz, the psychologist, move it to Vronski's rooms. Police arrest Thorne Dryden, who hated Vronski, and his wife, Lorna, disappears to make police suspect her. Anne and Bigelow find Lorna and check her off their suspect list which still includes Karsanoff and Baroness Dorstatt.

Chapter 25

It was half past three. Bigelow felt irritable and depressed and he did not know what to do with himself. He picked up the latest editions of the papers and after one look at them, settled down in a corner to examine them eagerly.

The police had received an anonymous letter. It was typewritten and read:

To the Police of New York, Gentlemen:

The man who was recently found dead in his apartment and who was known as Count Anton Vronski was an impostor. Really, he was a Russian peasant from the Vronski estates in Russia and his name was Paul Cienkowski. In the revolution, he joined the Bolsheviks but he afterward turned traitor and fled from Russia with a fortune in stolen jewels. The Vronski family was wiped out during the revolution. This man deserves the death which came to him.

The newspapers wondered if the letter furnished a valuable new clue to the murder or if it was merely a red herring intended to obscure the trail.

Bigelow went to his room to call Austrelitz, but his telephone was ringing as he unlocked his door and Austrelitz was on the wire.

"Hello?"

"Have you seen the evening papers?" asked Austrelitz.

"Yes. A few minutes ago, I was just going to call you. What do you make of it?"

"That letter was typed on the machine in my private office," said Austrelitz significantly. "I've just typed out a copy to compare with the facsimile in the paper and I'm sure it's an old machine, you know. The eccentricities of the type are identical."

"Good Lord!" cried Bigelow.

"The lady who managed to get in there and wait for me yesterday," said Austrelitz gravely.

Bigelow whistled under his breath.

"Better not discuss it this way," advised Austrelitz. "Are you going to be free for a bit?"

"I'm afraid so," admitted Bigelow gloomily.

"Get a taxi then, and come up."

"Right."

The Torn-Off Letterhead

Bigelow hung up and put on his hat and coat, but with his hand on the door-knob, he hesitated, staring uncertainly at the telephone. With a slight shrug, he turned back to call up Anne. But Walters answered, informing him that she had not yet come in. He glanced at his wrist-watch, thinking she was taking a long time over lunch, then with a sigh, he set out.

In the lobby, the little man took up the trail and followed Bigelow, but although Bigelow acknowledged his presence with a scowl, he made no effort to shake him off.

Dr. Austrelitz had him ushered in without delay, and laid out for his inspection on the desk the facsimile of the letter the police had received and the copy he had made himself on his old typewriter.

"Look at these!" said the doctor quietly.

Bigelow examined them interestedly.

"You see how the e is blocked up so that the top part prints solid," pointed out the doctor, "and the u is slightly crooked and the capital C both in 'Count' and 'Cienkowski' prints slightly above the line? It doesn't seem possible to me that another typewriter would have all three defects—or at least, not probable."

"But how in the world did you get of comparing this typing with the typing done on your machine?" asked Bigelow curiously.

"I don't know. One recognizes typing done on one's own machine. I suppose without realizing it oneself, one's mind becomes aware of the various oddities of the type. And then there was one curious thing that I observed yesterday without really thinking about it. You know how one sometimes notes and records an impression mechanically without realizing until afterward that one has done so?"

"Yes," nodded Bigelow.

"Well, it happens that I have a habit of pacing the floor when I'm restless or absorbed in thinking. I did it yesterday while Karsanoff was here and as I passed the desk, my eyes fell upon the wastepaper basket several times. The basket was about half full of wastepaper, and on top of it lay a thin strip of paper—the letterhead torn or cut off a sheet of my stationery. Its presence there aroused a vague curiosity somewhere in the back of my mind, but I was too intent on what Karsanoff was saying and looking to concentrate on the matter of the torn-off letterhead. And by the time Karsanoff had departed, I had forgotten about it. But this afternoon when I saw the newspaper, I remembered the letterhead. Perhaps that first suggested to me that the letter might have been typed here. Afterward, I questioned Miss Westcott and she assured me she had not thrown it in the basket. So it must have been Karsanoff. No one else used this room except when I myself was present."

Bigelow nodded. "I think it's fairly clear, then, that Karsanoff typed the letter. Do you suppose she represents her government or some Russian secret order formed to deal with cases like Vronski's?"

"It seems possible. And I can think of no good reason why she should have written the letter if the facts in it are not true. I mean—if she was officially acting as nemesis, there is a purpose in her sending the letter—to let others know what fate traitors can expect. Otherwise, what purpose could there be?"

"She might have sent it in an effort to see the police on the right trail—or perhaps to aid Dryden."

Austrelitz shook his head with a faint smile. "In my opinion Madame Karsanoff is too interested in her own career to waste time or thought on matters that do not directly concern her. Let me lay before you my own reasoning in regard to that letter. Here is my line of thought."

"You Think She Shot Him?"

Austrelitz began to pace the floor. "Either the facts in that letter are false or they are true. If they are false, she has gone to some trouble to invent them and for what purpose? To clear Dryden—a man that she does not know? That doesn't seem likely. On the other hand, if the facts are true, they mean more to you and me than to the police. They mean that Karsanoff must have learned them in order to be able to reveal them. But when did she learn them, after Vronski's death or before?"

"Before, of course—" cried Bigelow.

"We can't be sure of that, but if she knew them before, we could understand something which puzzled us—her curious reactions when you first mentioned Vronski's name to her on the ship and when you afterward presented him."

"She knew who he was all the time," cried Bigelow.

"I think so, I think she recognized his name on the ship but wasn't certain it was the man she had in mind until you actually presented him."

"And a few hours after that, he was shot," said Bigelow.

"Yes. They looked at each other gravely."

"You think she shot him?" asked Bigelow.

"Yes. I have thought so from the beginning, only I could think of no way of establishing the fact except by eliminating all other possibilities. And until now, you must remember, we have had no motive to ascribe to her."

"Do you want to establish the fact of her guilt?" asked Bigelow curiously. "I mean—you don't want

Plant Removes Soot Nuisance At New London

Installation of Pulverizers Completed by Borden Company

New London—The off-heard complaint of soot from the smokestacks of the Borden Milk Products company will no longer be justified in New London as the result of installation of two more fuel pulverizers last week, completing conversion of the five furnaces in the plant according to G. A. Wells, superintendent. The last machine was put into place Saturday. Soot will be eliminated except on occasions when starting a cold furnace it was explained.

The gradual installations are the result of complaints by housewives to plant and city officials alike in past years. Cooperation of manufacturing companies was asked by the city. The Borden factory was considered by far the worst offender by residents in that area.

Plan Improvements
Improvements are planned or under way at the plant in preparation for a seasonal as well or better than that of last year when the output of one million cases of canned milk was above that of any in the past several years. A special 220-foot conveyor to carry milk, the length of the factory floor, storage rooms is under construction now by the Atlas Conveyor company at Clintonville. It will be installed next month at a cost of $5,000.

Cased milk has not been stored here for many years, according to Mr. Wells. Last year the addition of 16,500 feet of refrigerated floor space doubled storage capacity to allow a total of 200,000 cases. The addition at the west end of the factory was heavily insulated last summer.

Add Trucks
With increasing production facilities two new 2,000-gallon tanks are being prepared for summer hauling and a new truck has already been put in service the past few weeks. The new tanks are of alloy mounted on specially built trailers allowing lighter and more compact construction. All trucking equipment is of the semi-trailer type except one. The company now has for operation seven complete truck-trailer units, one truck and tank combined and one extra trailer tank for emergencies.

Plans are under way to increase storage space to accommodate the enlarged trucking operations. An addition will be put under construction as soon as plans are approved and that is expected to be within a month according to the superintendent.

The work of W. E. Tyson, chemist, will be taken over temporarily by Fred Redfick, bookkeeper. Tyson will leave Wednesday to take over grocery store at Richland Center. Redfick is an experienced chemist having held the position in the plant here many years ago.

Fish, Game Club Will Complete Organization

New London—Members of the recently formed New London Fish and Game club will meet at the city hall tomorrow evening to complete organization business. A report will be heard from the membership committee and the board of directors will be chosen. Tentative committees and work projects will be discussed.

The membership committee has been active the past two weeks and a large representation is expected. Advancement of the hook and line pike fishing season to April 10 through efforts of officers and members of the club was the first important undertaking as an organization.

More Bowlers in City Championship Contest

Forty Youngsters Compete In Marble Tournament

New London—Over 40 boys and girls under 12 years of age took part in a marble tournament at Lincoln school Saturday afternoon under the direction of Angus Kretschmer, WPA recreational worker. Agates were given as prizes to the first seven place winners. There were 28 boys and 14 girls in the games.

Junior Schumacher won first place in the boys group and Anne Freiburger won in the girls section. All other places in both groups fell in order of boys, James Lautenschlager, Ernest Holladay, Kelly Zernicke, Tealre Borchardt, Erce McPeak, Robert Fisher, girls: Grace Leach, Charlene Pillsbury, Elaine Lund, Jean Gaddis, Phyllis Lund, Margaret Finger.

The youngsters were divided into groups of seven each. Players were eliminated as soon as their agate was hit by another. Kretschmer presented first place winners in the boys' and girls groups with 39 agates each, second place with 20, and the other five places accordingly.

Efforts are being made to have an elimination contest sponsored in the city in order to enter the winners in some of the many district and state marble tournaments which launched by various agencies each spring.

City Cage Teams Will Battle for City Championship

Freiburgers and Mike's Taverns Have Each Won One Game

New London—Freiburgers Cities Service cagers evened scores with Mike's Taverns when they defeated them 23 to 20 in a game at the Washington High school gym yesterday afternoon. The Taverns won out in a game earlier this season and the two teams plan to have it for undisputed city championship in a game at the school next Sunday afternoon.

Two high school regulars, Elmer and Yost, scrimmaged for the City Service team yesterday with Yost putting three baskets for the amateurs and Glocke none. Horchick dropped six buckets. In the championship game next week the Taverns plan to enlist Demming and Nader on their side to make the game interesting. The high school cagers played their last game for the school when they lost to Shawano Saturday evening in the regional meet.

Freiburgers' squad will play a game at the armory there this evening. They trimmed the guardians in a previous game here.

Lost to Shawano

Yesterday Mike's Taverns took a 31 to 18 trimming from a Shawano team. The New London squad trailed all the way except when they tied the game 11-all at the end of the first half.

to see her in Dryden's place, do you?"
"No. I can't honestly say I do. Theoretically, one realizes that it is one's duty as a citizen of a civilized community to see that a murderer or murderer pays the just penalty for his or her crime. But in a case like this, where the victim was a thorough scoundrel and the murderer such a beautiful creature and such a brilliant dancer—one hesitates to denounce her. On the other hand, is one to let Dryden go to the chair?"
"Certainly not," agreed Baislow. "I'll admit the case against him does not seem very strong, but one never knows about juries. So much depends upon how the lawyers present their case—and how persuasive they are—and what sort of brains the juryman have got and what sort of lives they've lived. . . . Any number of things. . . . Suppose the case goes against Dryden and he's convicted and Karsanoff has by that time departed these shores—that she has no inclination to confess and sacrifice herself to save him. She may argue that he would have killed him if she hadn't saved him the trouble—and that therefore he is just as guilty as she is and just as deserving of punishment."

New York — (AP) — Depressed by growing labor upsets, traders turned again to the selling side in today's stock market and quoted values of leading issues fell 1 to more than 6 points at the close.

Activity was pronounced at intervals with the tick: late at the height of the slides. Support appeared occasionally but the volume dwindled.

A number of issues came back from their low points in the final hour, but the majority lacked recovery vitality and closed at the bottom. Transfers were around 2,150,000 shares.

Steels ran with the motors on the downturn, apparently ignoring the estimate of the American Iron and Steel Institute placing current mill operations at 82.5 per cent of capacity, up 7 of a point from last week at a new top since August, 1929.

U. S. Bonds Dip After Making Early Advances

New York — (AP) — U. S. government bonds rallied mildly today but later support was lacking and they drifted lower in a quiet market.

A few issues managed to withstand the trend but in others losses were as much as six points.

Quietude settled over other divisions of the market, but with some what different results. High grade corporate declines were grouped while the more speculative tinged issues followed mixed courses.

Lehigh Valley Coal Co. 5s of 1964 broke more than 3 points and the 5s of 1974 nearly 5 to provide two of the outstanding swings in the corporate section.

Abitibi Power 5s gained about 2 and fractional improvement was shown by Shell Union 3 1/2s, Loew's 9 1/2s and Anaconda 4 1/2s.

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

A Divided Court and Reasonable Doubt

Last week Senator Norris made a speech which, I believe, opens up the fundamental constitutional question on which the American people must make up their minds.

Citing Chief Justice Marshall that "in no doubtful case" would the court pronounce a legislative act to be contrary to the Constitution, Mr. Norris pointed out that the court has frequently invalidated an act of Congress as many as four justices dissenting. "Surely," he said, "if four judges think the act is unconstitutional, it is a doubtful case, and Congress should be given the benefit of the doubt."

I should agree that where the court is divided it is obvious that the Constitution does not speak plainly, and that reasonable men of equal learning in the law can interpret the Constitution differently. Chief Justice Marshall hoped they would not disagree sharply on fundamental issues, and we may all wish that the court had been able to follow his advice. But the fact is that often the justices do disagree with the utmost conviction that their brethren are wrong.

The question I should like to raise is whether Senator Norris is right in concluding that in such doubtful cases the doubt should always and automatically be resolved in favor of Congress. For my notion is that in great and doubtful cases where the Constitution is not clear the doubt should be cleared up not by a majority of Congress but by the people themselves through a clarifying device.

Acts of State Legislatures Would Not Get Benefit of Doubt

Let us note in the first place that Senator Norris has not proposed that acts of the state legislatures should also be given the benefit of the doubt when more than two justices dissent. Why not? Because he must see that this could create intolerable disorder. Let us suppose that a state enacted by indirect action what amounted to a tariff against products from other states, and that three justices, believing in states' rights, said the law was constitutional. Then, though two-thirds of the Supreme Court held the statute unconstitutional, and therefore no law at all, the state would seek to enforce it. What respect would the dairy farmers of Wisconsin have for a New York law excluding their milk when six out of nine members of the court had declared that law unconstitutional? Is it not clear that if Senator Norris' rule were applied to state laws the interpretation of the Constitution would be determined by a minority of the court?

No one, I think, has proposed to give the states the benefit of the doubt when the court is divided. Ought Congress, then, to have the benefit of the doubt in the sense that any act of Congress shall automatically be constitutional if a minority of three justices think it is constitutional? Let us suppose, now, that Congress passes a law which fixes a uniform minimum wage throughout the United States, identical in Georgia and in Massachusetts. Six justices say it is constitutional. So the president has to enforce the law in Georgia. Would Mr. Norris like the job of enforcing a law in Georgia that the people of Georgia disapproved and after six justices of the Supreme Court had declared the law unconstitutional?

May Nullify Laws of State But Not of Congress

Senator Norris is in effect proposing that a majority of the court may nullify the laws of a state but that they may not nullify the laws of Congress. That, wherever the constitution does not speak plainly, all reasonable doubts are to be resolved in favor of the existing congressional majority.

This is a curious way of interpreting "reasonable doubt," that where there is doubt one organ of government shall undoubtedly prevail, that it shall prevail over the states and over individuals though six justices think it has no lawful right to prevail.

I should suppose that if six justices hold an act unconstitutional, then it is at least reasonable to say that the law may be unconstitutional. But Senator Norris' rule is that if only six justices object, then there ought to be no doubt that the law is constitutional. The essence of the proposal, therefore, is that the benefit of all constitutional doubts should always be given to the Ad-

Study Local Maid Training Course

State WPA Officials Will Observe Work in Trainee Classes

State WPA officials Tuesday will observe work in the WPA maid training course at the vocational school and Appleton Women's club building preparatory to starting similar classes in other cities. Mrs. Elizabeth Macaulay is in charge of the local class which has been operating for about four months. Luncheon will be served Tuesday at the women's clubrooms by the trainees.

When the course was organized Dec. 1, definite ideals set forth were essential to democracy under the American form of government. Process of Amendment is Much too Rigid

My own view is that the defect of the constitution is that the process of amendment, which is the American way of consulting the people on basic issues, is too rigid, too complicated, and too slow. I should like to see it simplified and expedited by a provision that when a divided court has shown that there is reasonable doubt as to what the constitution means, the act shall be valid if two-thirds of congress re-enact to and if the voters by a special referendum ratify the act.

There are many details which would have to be carefully considered. But the main principle seems to me fairly certain. It is in effect a modified combination of what Senator Norris and Senator Wheeler have proposed. It says that reasonable doubts about the meaning of the constitution shall be resolved by the people who alone have the ultimate power in all constitutional issues.
